JAP PLOT AIMED AT U. S.

The anti-alien land bill will be pushed through the Legislature of California today. It will go to Governor Johnson tomorrow.

The proposed legislation will be framed in strict conformity with the Japanese treaty and will prevent the further acquisition by Japanese subjects of farming lands and ranches. The bill also insists on the State's sovereign rights to enact laws relating to the acquisition of realty by aliens.

"No sufficient reason," says Governor Johnson, "has been advanced that should cause the State to halt in any contemplated legislation."

NEW YORK, April 30.—Every pound of smokeless ordnance powder purchased by the United States Government for the army and navy is manufactured by the Dupont-DeNemours Powder Company. The principal plant is located at Haskell, N. J., thirty-three miles from New York City. It is the biggest of its kind in America.

A Japanese syndicate, headed by Heitaro Fujita, has purchased 1600 acres adjoining the Dupont plant. He now owns five great hilltops, each one of which commands a different section of the powder works. Fujita is said by some to represent the Japanese Government.

Admits Negotiations.

The New York American discovered this fact.

With such caution did some of the agents of Fujita take title to these hills that the neighborhood did not become aroused until the present agitation in California against the alien ownership of land began to develop international proportions.

Purchase was made through Joshua Picker of Haskell, acting for Lawrence H. Tasker of No. 154 Nassau street, New York.

"Why the Japanese have quietly settled here beside us is a puzzle," said an officer of the Dupont Company at Haskell today.

"If they wanted to, they could mount a few guns and throw shells that would put us out of business."

Mr. Tasker today at his home at Tuckahoe, N. Y., declared that Fujita did not represent the Japanese Government, and acted only for himself. He said:

"It is only a coincidence that Mr. Fujita's holdings are near the smokeless powder plant of the Duponts. The last purchases were made about four months ago. If he could sell at a profit he would sell tomorrow."

That the United States government is wholly dependent upon the Dupont Com-

Report Mrs. Bryan at Rest Cure, Worn by Society Rush

WASHINGTON, April 30.—There is much mystery over the reported illness of Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, wife of the Secretary of State. Her friends understand she has broken down as the result of the strenuous social schedule she has observed since her arrival in the capital.

It was reported that Mrs. Bryan had been ordered by her physician to take the "rest cure" in a local sanitarium, but inquirers at the institution were referred to Dr. J. Thomas Kelley, Jr.

At his home, it was said today that Dr. Kelley had not returned there.

75 HOPEDALE STRIKERS NOW FACE EVICTION

MILFORD, April 30.—Seventy-five families of strikers living in the Draper Company's houses will be evicted from their homes, if they do not obey the notice of the company and move out of their own volition. Eviction papers were today placed in the hands of the sheriff.

Strike Leader Joseph Coldwell says the I. W. W. has made arrangements for housing the families, if they are evicted. The houses from which the strikers will be evicted are in the Prospect Heights section of Milford, just over the Hopedale line.

Joseph Coldwell, Caleb T. Howard and Flavio Albavotti, strike leaders, and nineteen strikers who paraded through the streets of Hopedale yesterday without a permit were arraigned today. It was the second time Leader Coldwell has been arraigned within a week. The cases of all, except Howard, were continued to Saturday. Howard will be arraigned Monday.

The inquest into the killing of Emilio Barchiocchi, slain in a clash between strike pickets and special policemen, was begun at 10 o'clock today. Summonses were issued for the three Hopedale officers on duty in the section where the shooting occurred, as well as for nine strikers.

BORDEN GIRL TO "ELOPE"

Miss Ramona Borden, the seventeen-year old "poor little rich girl," who was found in the Hotel Vendome in this city after a week of frenzied search by detectives employed by her father, Gail Borden, the wealthy manufacturer of condensed milk, now says that the next time she runs away it will be to elope.

Miss Borden laughed when she said it, according to dispatches today from New York city. She is at the Hotel Belmont with her mother for a week or ten days, pending their departure for Los Angeles.

"Do you find any runaway feeling coming on again?" the girl was asked.

"Not just yet," she said. "When I do it will be to elope."

Then the girl laughed, as though she had begun to recover from the strained and nervous state which seemed to affect her when found in Boston.

Has Nothing but Money.

Then she added:

"People say I am rich, but that does not mean that I am happy. Daughters of rich people are not always happy.

"I haven't had a home for many years. I've been to one school after another. What I wanted was just a home—a home.

"When I ran away from school my father put me in a sanitarium, where I had a strong-arm nurse for a companion. I begged Mrs. White to take me away.

"I didn't have anything but money. I couldn't buy happiness with it. It didn't do me any good except to buy fine clothes. I planned my flight myself. No one else had anything to do with it.

Reconciliation Denied.

It was reported, owing to the presence of Mrs. Borden in New York, that a reconciliation had been made between Mr. and Mrs. Borden. Both denied this, however.

Mrs. Borden said she does not expect to see Mr. Borden while she is in the East.

"In Los Angeles," she said, "my daughter will be with me and with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Valk. This arrangement has been made with the consent of Mr. Borden."

Gail Borden confirmed this later, saying:

"It is not my nature to use a firm parental hand, so I am giving up the custody of my daughter. I hope some other father will be luckier than I have been. Ramona is capricious. I feel that she will be better off with her mother."

C. A. Hobart of Customs Service Hangs Himself

Charles A. Hobart of the United States Customs Service at this port, who had been on a leave of absence for three months on account of nervous prostration, committed suicide by hanging at his home, No. 32 Bennington street, North Quincy, today. The police tried vainly to revive him with a pulmotor, the new device to stimulate breathing, which has been successful in many asphyxiation cases. Mr. Hobart was forty years old and had a wife and two boys, Merrill, ten years, and Wesley, seven. For three years he had suffered from nervous disorder.

He arose early today and built the kitchen fire. Mrs. Hobart discovered her husband's body hanging by a rope from a cellar rafter.

Mr. Hobart was a graduate of Quincy High School, and entered the customs service at Boston eighteen years ago. He was a past noble grand of Mt. Wollaston Lodge of Odd Fellows and a member of Adinet Encampment of Odd Fellows and of the Workmen.

SECRET IN TAYLORS' PARTING

Dr. James B. Taylor of Brookline said in court today that he has three reasons for not living with Mrs. Taylor but that he wouldn't tell the third reason.

Asked by his counsel for the three reasons, in order, he replied:

1.—Her poor housekeeping and her habit of being in the street all the time."

2. "Her great slackness of person."

3. "I'll have to omit the third reason."

Dr. Taylor is a nerve specialist with offices in the Boston Back Bay district. He is defending himself before Judge King and jury in the Norfolk Superior Criminal Court at Dedham from a charge of assault brought by Mrs. Florence B. Taylor.

The doctor and his wife have separated by mutual agreement and the doctor's "reasons" for this were incidental to the assault testimony.

Still Loves Her a Little.

"Have you any love now for your wife," the doctor was asked.

"I have some," he replied. "I won't say that it is all gone. I did not lose it all at once. I have been losing it gradually. This began about three years ago."

With the assistance of Assistant District Attorney Katzmann, Dr. Taylor gave his demonstration of the manner in which he "assaulted" his wife, maintaining that it was no assault at all. The doctor stood on the top step of the judge's bench, Katzmann remaining on the lower one. Dr. Taylor placed his hands on the latter's shoulder and turned the latter around. He explained the incident to the jury.

When asked if his fists were doubled, he said:

"Oh, no; not at all!"

Tells About Mrs. Tileston.

Mrs. Tileston, who lives at Dr. Taylor's home with her husband and mother, was frequently mentioned during the morning session. Dr. Taylor said Mrs. Tileston came to his home to care for his child. This was after he separated from his wife by agreement.

Continuing, the witness said Mrs. Tileston was to stay two weeks, but the child was sick four months, and she remained and cared for him. Dr. Taylor said his wife went to Provincetown in the Summer of 1911 at her own request. He gave her $280. That was the year he bought his automobile, he said.

Here Dr. Taylor told how he went automobiling with Mrs. Tileston three or four times a week. He said there was always a third person present. He said Mrs. Tileston, her mother, husband and son are still at his home and that the former still cares for his child. He said Mrs. Tileston and her relatives pay him $60 a month for board and room.

Dr. Taylor admitted that his sister, who is married and has no children, lives in three rooms over his garage.

Coun[illegible] Delays Action [illegible] Randall for Prison Board

The Governor's Council today again laid over for one week confirmation of the appointment of Frank G. Randall of Minnesota as chairman of the Prison Commission to succeed Frederick Pettgrove.

Opposition to the confirmation of Randall exists in the Council on the ground that he is not a citizen of Massachusetts.

The Governor sent no nominations to the Council today.

QUINCY HOME BURNED.

Fire destroyed the home of Frank C. Warren of No. 152 Palmer street, Quincy, today. The loss was about $1,200. Mr. Warren had built the house himself and had just completed it after three years' work in his spare hours.

SNAPSHOT taken today of Mrs. James R. Taylor, wife of Brookline and Boston physician, whom she accuses of attacking her. He says he only turned her around forcibly.

Women to Have Vote on Choosing Site for Subway

Here's where women get the vote—and right here in Boston, too. Not only that, but it's going to be the most novel poll ever taken in Greater Boston.

Beginning tomorrow, the Boston Elevated is going to take a poll of all the passengers on all inbound cars from the west. The purpose of this "straw vote" will be to learn which is the more favored route for the new Dartmouth street subway—the route terminating at Park street as at present planned, or the proposed route, which will carry the subway through [illegible] square.

Ballots will be taken tomorrow, Saturday, and on next Monday. The "qualification" is that the [illegible] patrons have an intelligent understanding of the present subway plans and the suggested change which would send the subway under Boylston and Essex streets, Kingston and Otis, Devonshire and Milk streets, with a loop around the Federal building. The results of the votes will be sent to the Boston Transit Commission.

CASSIDY'S BILLS UP FOR ACTION IN SENATE TODAY

Two bills introduced by Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert, came up today in the Senate for action.

One is the bill forbidding the sale of ice cream artificially flavored, or flavored with rancid nuts or fruit, or containing less than five per cent milk fat. The other amends the manufacture of sausage containing more than two per cent. cereal, or more than three per cent. water.

Senator Blanchard of Somerville moved postponement on the sausage bill and plans to oppose it.

MELLEN WINED AND DINED BY BRADY AT FEAST FIT FOR KINGS

"Diamond Jim" Brady, who gave President Mellen of the New Haven Railroad a feast fit for a king in New York recently and who wears real diamonds for buttons on the waistcoat of his dress suit, figured prominently today at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

POWER BEHIND FIRM GIVEN RICH JOBS BY MELLEN.

The evidence showed that Brady is the leading power of the Keith Manufacturing Company and other big corporations that enjoy exclusive contracts to build freight and passenger cars and to furnish a variety of equipment and supplies to the various railroads controlled by President Mellen's monopoly.

Brady is one of the most picturesque characters in the railroad world today, and his name has cropped out repeatedly at the present government probe of the affairs and finances of the New Haven Railroad.

Best of Viands and Wines.

"Diamond Jim's" real name is James B. Brady. Although as old and as big as President Taft (actual weight 351), the lover of rare gems is reported to be one of the best turkey trotters in New York. He is a bachelor. The banquet he gave in President Mellen's honor is said to have eclipsed anything of its kind in years. There was nothing too choice or dainty in the shape of viands and wines.

The cause for this long and close intimacy between President Mellen and "Diamond Jim," who has more than once been called "Mellen's man Friday," was made public in a measure today by the testimony of H. A. Fabian, purchasing agent for the New Haven and subsidiary lines.

It was shown that the influence that "Diamond Jim" exercises resulted in contracts running into the millions. Nor was this evidence brought to light as the result of the "Brandeis Inquisition," as the Mellen interests have characterized the Interstate Commerce inquiry to date.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce today stepped into the ring through Attorney Robert Homans who produced a stack of contracts which he proceeded to show had been handed out to friendly interests in spite of low bids by competing firms for car building, coal, [illegible] supplies.

Big Crowd Looked For Mellen.

SACRIFICE FOR MOTHER WINS BOY'S FREEDOM

Henry G. Brown, a Charlestown youth, was pardoned out of Concord Reformatory by the Governor's Council today, because he is to sacrifice some of his blood to save his mother's life.

This is the first pardon case of this kind on record in this State. So far as Secretary of State Frank J. Donahue has heard, it is the first one of the kind in the country.

Henry G. Brown is twenty-one years old. He was sent to Concord as a wayward boy for an indeterminate sentence.

Meanwhile, his mother, Mrs. Catherine Brown, was sent to Long Island Hospital, down in Boston Harbor, stricken with blood poisoning.

Dr. J. M. Tomkies, resident physician at the hospital, decided that transfusion of vigorous, healthy blood into Mrs. Brown's veins is the only way to save her life.

Dr. Tomkies decided, as he wrote in a letter read to the Council today, that William A. Brown of Charlestown, the invalid's husband, will not do for the case, as his blood is not suitable.

Then the son, confined in Concord Reformatory, was told. The son immediately begged for an opportunity to do this for his sick mother.

Dr. Tomkies wrote the Council that the son is a fit subject for the transfusion of blood to the invalid's veins.

Secretary of State Donahue and others became interested in the case. The pardon recommendation of Governor Foss [illegible] Council at today's session. The Councillors resisted that, while the operation might be performed merely by taking the son down to Long Island, without pardoning him, still the youth has shown himself of the right spirit and is truly reformed. [illegible] pardon was voted.

LAWYER COAKLEY'S HOME BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

The home of Daniel H. Coakley, the lawyer, on Parsons street, Brighton, was badly damaged by a fire which started in the laundry this noon. Mr. Coakley's mother, who has been so ill as to require a nurse, was carried out.

PRESIDENT MELLEN TO TAKE STAND FRIDAY AND REPLY TO HIS CRITICS

this examination of Auditor Brown of the Interstate Commerce Commission, but Vice-President Buckland was not prepared to proceed with the auditor's cross-examination, so Purchasing Agent Fabian was sworn.

An overflow crowd was on hand expecting to see President Mellen on the witness stand. Attorney Charles F. Choate, personal counsel for Mr. Mellen said that the latter would not testify for two or three days, until they had "finished with Brown." As Chairman Prouty may not sit Friday, President Mellen may not testify until early next week.

Attorney Homans showed through Purchasing Agent Fabian that James H. Brady is vice-president of the Keith Car Manufacturing Company at Sagamore, Mass., that he was formerly an official of the Providence Security Company which figured conspicuously in New Haven exploits; that Brady is also a vice president of the Osgood Bradley Car Company of Worcester, and an official of the Manning, Maxwell & Moore Co. of New York, which handles railroad supplies and tools and sells exclusively the Hancock inspirator to all the Mellin lines.

Big Contracts to Brady Concern.

Purchasing Agent Fabian testified that in 1909 two contracts were awarded to Brady's firm known as the Keith Car Manufacturing Company on Cape Cod, one for $5,500,000 to build a lot of new freight cars for the Boston & Maine and another for $1,600,000 to build gondola cars for the New Haven. Two years later, in 1911, the New Haven handed the Keith company another contract for $1,040,000 to build 1,000 box and coal cars.

Fabian admitted that the Laconia Car Company and some others offered bids but that the Keith Company got the contracts. He explained that contracts to build passenger cars were also awarded to the Osgood Bradley Car Company of Worcester of which "Diamond Jim" Brady is also a vice-president and that both the Keith and the Bradley Company are really subsidiaries of the Standard Steel Car Company, the biggest car building trust in the country, of which Brady is also vice-president.

The witness admitted that many of the contracts with the enterprises in which Brady is actively interested were of the "exclusive" type. He said the Galena Signal Oil Company had exclusive contracts for supplying lubricants, and admitted that this was controlled by the Standard Oil and that Rockefeller and Pratt, so potent in Standard Oil affairs, are directors of the railroad.

Attorney Homans brought out through Fabian that the Wasson company also supplied the New Haven line with equipment and that the son of former President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Railroad is an official in the Wasson company. It was further admitted by Fabian that the Keystone Coal Company and the Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Company supplied practically all of the coal to the Boston & Maine and the New Haven lines, despite keen competition on the part of other mines and dealers.

Mr. Fabian admitted that the son of President Cassatt is sales agent of the Keystone Coal Company and President Mellen's son, Graham Mellen, is eastern sales agent.

Delay Caused by Poor Coal.

Evidence was brought out today that the delay to passenger trains on the Fitchburg road of the Boston & Maine was due to poor coal.

It was shown that Graham Mellen, son of President Mellen, is Eastern selling agent of the Keystone Coal Company which, with the Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Company, supplies practically all the coal of the Boston & Maine line.

It was also shown that the head of the Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Company is a Mr. McCard, who is a director of the New Haven road, and that, despite keen competition of other mining companies, these two companies have the contracts annually.

This testimony was brought out through the examination by Robert Homans, attorney representing the Boston Chamber of Commerce, of H. A. Fabian purchasing agent of the New Haven lines.

Mr. Fabian testified that the contract with the Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Company, of which Director McCard of the New Haven is the head, was made for the New Haven lines on April 12, 1912. The contract calls for the company to furnish between 30,000 and 60,000 tons of coal monthly.

Asked if the contract was the result of verbal or written communications with Mr. McCard, Mr. Fabian said that the matter was submitted to him and that he tested a carload and found it satisfactory.

BISHOP STARTS ON STATE INSPECTION OF MELLEN LINES

Commissioner George W. Bishop of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission left Boston today for the Cape district, where he will begin a thorough inspection of the New Haven railroad. The investigation is planned to be the most exhaustive in the history of the commission and is the result of revelations of New Haven methods and railroad conditions made at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing in the Federal Building.

Under the plans of the commission as adopted by the full board, Commissioner Bishop's trip is to Walk the ties to see that they are sound and to inspect the spikes.

Note the physical condition of the road.

Keep a sharp eye on the rolling stock.

Look into all methods of operation.

Under the plans of the commission Commissioner Bishop expects to complete the inspection in about two months.

Warden Bridges at 77 Laughs at Osler Theory

Warden Benjamin F. Bridges of the Charlestown State Prison was busy today receiving congratulations from a host of friends on the occasion of his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary.

"I am feeling better than I did fifteen years ago," he declared smilingly to the AMERICAN. "I wasn't feeling very well then, and thought I might have to retire. Today I feel more fit and able to do more work than thirty-five years ago.

"Dr. Osler, who spoke at Cambridge before Harvard students yesterday, was wrong if he said all men ought to retire at sixty years of age. He ought to see me, if he still thinks so. There isn't a day that I am not down at my desk by 7:30 in the morning and I work until 9, 10 or 11 at night.

"It's work, pastures for most ailments! There is no doubt in my mind that it is. I attribute my fitness in harness after sixty years to the hard work I have done."

BURGLARS IN TWO CHELSEA CHURCHES

Three breaks reported to the Chelsea police today were apparently made by the same band. All were made by breaking a rear window and then reaching in and unfastening the latch. The first break was at the blacksmith shop of John Harvey, No. 150 Fourth street, where $1.80 was stolen from the telephone box. The next was at the Church of the Assumption. The poor box near the altar was rifled of $1.25. At St. Rose's church one of the thieves apparently cut his hand, as blood stains were visible on the priest's vestments. It is not known whether anything was taken.

DRIVERS' BADGE ON BODY OF MAN

NEWBURY, April 30.—The mangled body of a man was found near the railroad station here by the crew of a Boston & Maine freight train. The train had been stopped to investigate the breaking of a compressed air tube. On the man's body was found a receipt for $1 of the Truck Drivers', Helpers' and Chauffeurs' Union, No. 25, made out to William Carolin. A nickel-plated badge worn by the dead man bore the same name, with the date "May, 1913."

BIG RAILROAD CHIEFS MEET AT TOURAINE

For the first time in history—recent history, anyhow—all the railroad presidents of New England were in Boston today and assembled under one tent.

They were at the Touraine.

Those of them who would talk said the fact of their being in one tavern had "no particular significance."

These were the railroad heads whose names appeared on the Touraine register:

Charles S. Mellen, president of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven railroads.

Edson J. Chamberlin, president of the Grand Trunk.

George C. Jones, vice-president of the Central Vermont.

Percy Ryerson Todd, president of the Bangor & Aroostook.

John C. Murdock, vice-president of the Southern New England.

Todd Has Forgotten Strike.

President Todd of the Bangor & Aroostook was the only president visible to the naked eye of a chance reporter. An important conference was about to come off with somebody, but Mr. Todd stopped long enough to say that he had almost forgotten the strike.

"We settled it," he said, "by getting rid of all the old men—all, that is, to speak exactly—and putting new men in their places. It was only a nine days' wonder."

A note addressed to President Mellen was sent by the hotel clerk—Mr. Gordon—to the room of his secretary. Back came word that Mr. Rowland was "not in."

Vice-President Jones of the "C. V." said he was here to go to New London with President Chamberlin and "look into some matters there." Mr. Jones was quite sure it was only an accident that Mr. Chamberlin and Mr. Mellen were at the hotel at the same time.

Then love in slight the tall form of Vice-President John C. Murdock of Providence and the Southern New England, who used to be chief counsel for the Grand Trunk in Rhode Island.

A Word from "Cy."

"I'm here," Mr. Murdock said, "because I wanted to see the President and I did not want to go to Montreal."

An effort being made to see President Chamberlin, the following announcement came downstairs from the gifted typewriter of Cy Warman:

"The Grand Trunk official car, 'Benevento,' arrived this morning with the following officials on board: President E. J. Chamberlin, Vice-President M. M. Reynolds, G. C. Jones, Vice-President of the Central Vermont, and Cy Warman of the Grand Trunk.

"The party was joined at the Touraine by John S. Murdock, vice-president of the Southern New England, and Governor E. C. Smith, a director of the C. V. Ry. The main object was to confer on Southern New England matters.

"Mr. Jones will endeavor to take the party back by the way of New London, Ct., where large improvements are to be made in the docks. This was all that could be dug up in few brief minutes this forenoon, but a hard-working reporter was to guess about it he would guess that there was something going on—or something about to come off—at the Hotel Touraine.

WAGE-EARNERS' CONCERT.

All's Well,' Boston Chamber Tourists Say at Kingston

The following cablegram, dated Kingston, Jamaica, received today at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, announces the arrival of the S. S. Metapan, with the Chamber's South American and Panama-Colombia tour parties aboard, at Kingston, Jamaica:

Arrived all right after a very pleasant passage with delightful weather. Everything and everybody all well and looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the novel experiences that are before them.

The members of the party have not ceased to talk of the wonderful enthusiasm of the farewell extended to them by the Chamber and the people of Boston.

All wish to join in an expression of their appreciation.

DILLINGHAM.

The party will remain at Kingston a day and is due at Colon, Panama, Friday. Three days will be spent on the Isthmus inspecting the Panama Canal. Monday morning the South American tourists will begin to sail up the Pacific for Callao, Peru.

The Panama-Colombia party will reach Santa Marta, Colombia on Saturday.

Transfused Blood Fails to Save West Newton Mother

Mrs. Catherine G. Leahy of West Newton died at the Newton Hospital at 7 o'clock today, following transfusion of blood from her husband, Richard T. Leahy in a final effort to save her life.

A girl baby was born six weeks ago. Mrs. Leahy failed to rally.

Last night Mr. Leahy, a powerful man, submitted to the sacrifice of blood when all other methods had failed. Mrs. Leahy seemed to gain up to midnight, but grew weaker and passed away.

The baby which cost her life is thriving. There are two older children. The Leahys were married six years ago and the family home is at No. 25 Porter street, West Newton.

PLOT TO SEIZE PORTUGUESE NAVY

MADRID, April 30.—A conspiracy in the Portuguese Navy similar to that which resulted in the overthrow of Manuel and the setting up of a republic in Portugal was discovered today, according to a telegram from Lisbon. Seven sailors on board the Portuguese cruiser Sao Gabriel, in Tagus Harbor, were arrested while trying to signal to friends on shore, and later one of them confessed that a plot existed to turn the navy into the hands of the royalists.

Clean Slate for Malden High in Probe on Morals

The Malden High School is given a "clean slate" in the report made public today of the Malden School Board of its investigation into the charges that the morals of the school children were not up to the standard. The board declares that it has made an exhaustive inquiry and has found the high school "remarkably free from the evils referred to in rumors" spread about the city. The board says the morals and behavior of the pupils are distinctly creditable.

The report styles the rumors as "malicious and hearsay" and states that persons who spread them confessed they had no facts on which to base their stories.

DEMOCRATS FIGHT TARIFF RESOLVE

The Democratic members of the House say they intend to make a vigorous fight against the adoption of the resolution reported by the Republican members of the Committee on Federal Relations, which pledges Massachusetts to the principle of a tariff for protection only. Representative Michael J. McStrick, one of the Democratic leaders today secured reconsideration of the resolution adopted yesterday by the House, and then secured postponement to enable him to offer a substitute set.

WANT SHARE IN FORE RIVER DEAL

E. E. Carpenter of New York, who says he is a large shareholder in the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, is soliciting minority stockholders to combine with him in getting something for the holders of common stock, if the sale of the property to the Bethlehem Steel Company for $600,000 goes through as planned, according to the Boston News Bureau.

WOMAN HOPES FIFTH TRY WILL BRING DIVORCE

Mrs. Lousa M. Lagerquist of Cambridge, after a seven-year struggle, hopes to win a divorce decree as a result of the fifth petition she has filed, according to dispatches today from Reno. Mrs. Lagerquist, who, like her husband, Eric, owns much real estate in Cambridge and Boston, has sought a divorce thrice in Massachusetts courts and once previously in Nevada. The couple have been married thirty-four years.

She testified in her latest contests that in 1905, as a culmination of her husband's alleged brutality, wherein he beat and wounded her and threatened her with a chisel and revolver, she was compelled in fear of her life to flee from home and never dared return.

She asked the restoration of her maiden name, Lousa Smith. The court ordered the case submitted.

Having alleged cruelty, statutory charges, failure to provide and excluding everything else which constitutes ground for divorce action, either separately or combined in her various preceding suits, this last action is based on the allegation of desertion since 1905.

FIVE ARRESTS IN RAID UPON SUFFRAGETTES

LONDON, April 30.—Renewed activity was shown today by the police in their crusade against militant suffragettes. For the second time the headquarters of the Woman's Social and Political Union, in King's Way, were raided. The raid was a spectacular one, taking place at noon when the streets were crowded with pedestrians. The inspector of the political branch of Scotland Yard arranged for the raid, which was carried out without a hitch.

At 11 o'clock a number of policemen entered the building and drove out all the occupants. Then they formed a cordon about the entrance and allowed no one to enter. In the meantime detectives arrived and began a systematic search of the offices of the union.

All the letter files of the organization and desks were searched and telephone communication cut off. Later five of the leading members of the organization, Misses Cary and Lake and Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Fiorg "General" Drummond and Annie Kenney, were arrested on a charge of malicious destruction of property.

HURLEY SINGED, BUT IS MOVING PICTURE HERO

Mayor John F. Hurley of Salem is minus the ends of his dapper sideWhiskers, but his famous four-gallon lid and his dazzling diamond shirtstud are safe. And behind the story of the singeing of the Hurley whiskers and the saving of his diamond and his high silk hat is the tale of how the "burning out" of the Hurley domicile in Salem for the benefit of a moving picture man became a realistic today that the fake up fire took on many of the features of the real thing.

First—There was the singeing of the Mayoralty whiskers.

Second—A man was carried down a ladder in a really and truly unconscious condition.

Third—The house really and truly caught fire.

10,000 Wildly Cheer.

The "stunt" started with the calling out of all the Salem fire apparatus and the sending of help from Marblehead. About the Hurley home at No. 12 Dow street, Salem, fully 10,000 men, women and children had gathered, most of them in a festive mood. Out of the Hurley windows and doorways poured thick clouds of smoke, into which played the red glare of burning chemicals.

At the right moment, when the moving picture man had his machine turned straight at the front door, Mayor Hurley rushed out in his shirtsleeves, his diamond a-dazzling, his head bare and his face all begrimed with black soot. At the strange sight, 10,000 throats cheered lustily.

After Mayor Hurley came his landlady, Mrs. John Belyea, who turned right in the eyes of the camera man. Pe-tered the house and saved the Mayor's tall hat.

Still More Cheers.

"Hooray!" chtered the throng in the street as Mrs. Belyea reappeared, holding the Mayor's "altitudinous kelly" high over her head.

"Thanks," said the mayor, as his hat was restored to him.

The crowd roared its cheers again.

"Help! help!!" somebody yelled.

The picture operator kept his machine reeling off his film in a mile-a-minute clip. In a moment he got another big feature. Out of the house came Miss Eva Wilson, the Mayor's secretary. Under her arm she carried the Mayor's pet dog, "Trixie."

"Hay, 'ray," shouted the crowd.

The crowd was all keyed up for fun like an army of boys out for a holiday. But then came the real thrill of the "lighting the damage" drama.

Up to the top floor had been run the extension indders. Firemen scurried up and bustled into the smoking windows. They heard real shouts for help. Over on the floor they found John Corrigan, who had been nearly suffocated by the dense fumes of the chemicals and the 200 pounds of powder used to make the smoke.

Corrigan Really Saved.

Corrigan was nearly suffocated. He was actually SAVED by Fireman Alfred Vervue and taken to the street where he recovered.

A second thrill came when the cry sounded that the house was afire. It turned out that a partition had caught from burning chemicals. This was extinguished by real water.

The real rescue, the real fire and the singeing of the famous Hurley whiskers were the only untoward incidents of the show. Otherwise, as the Mayor himself remarked, "It was a big success."

NEWS NUGGETS

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Unable to pay $50 which Mrs. Rachel Sparks, 50, charged he had stolen from her, Frank G. Girard, 50, offered himself to her instead. She accepted and the two were married. They were performers with a burlesque company here.

COLUMMBUS, O.—Although his wife, from whom he was divorced, is dead, William G. Stoneman must continue to pay alimony to her estate, according to a decision by the Ohio Supreme Court.

SOUTH NYACK, N. Y.—Women here have asked their Mayor to have passed an ordinance requiring that all cats be locked up and silenced at night. The feline serenade in the wee hours of the morning is unbearable, they declare.

NEW YORK.—"Neither of us wanted to get married any how. If the dollar is returnable send it to her." This request was attached to a marriage license, which was returned to the county clerk's office here by the near bridegroom. The fee for the license was not returnable.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—"Every time I hear ragtime music I have to take an extra grip on myself to keep my feet still," said the Rev. Arthur Pohlman of Philadelphia at the county Christian Endeavor convention here. "If writers of ragtime music would stop putting questionable words to their lyrics, their scores would live forever," he added.

SNAPSHOT of Miss Geraldine Farrar of Melrose, noted opera singer, taken as she was about to sail abroad after admitting that in October she is to wed an American, whose identity she keeps secret.

Geraldine Farrar, the beautiful Boston songbird—"Our Jerry" to folks in Melrose, where she was born—is going to marry. Fact! She says so herself.

"And he's an American," she adds with emphasis on the national part of her statement.

The wedding bells? Well, they're going to ring out this coming October. Miss Farrar said that, too. Her secret was revealed just before she sailed abroad on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Miss Mary Garden, radiant and slimmer than ever, sailed with her. About the time that Miss Farrar was telling of her wedding plans Miss Garden was having an exciting time in her suite de luxe on the steamship with—well, what do you think? Yes, a man under the couch. That's a fact, too. But first about Miss Farrar's love.

What She Said.

The handsome Boston diva was asked if she was going abroad to wed a Count, a Duke or a Prince.

"No, oh, no," she replied.

"So you don't intend to wed?" she was asked.

"I didn't say that," she retorted.

"Well, are you going to wed?"

"Now, that's different," she said. "The answer is, yes!"

"Who is he?"

"An American."

"His name?"

"Now, that's telling. But it's a pure love match, and he IS an American. And we'll be married in October."

Miss Farrar refused to say whether or not "he" comes up to her specifications for her husband which she made at the time she used the word "damn"—just like that—in saying what she thought of the whole tribe of foreign dukes. This is what she said her husband must be:

"He must be one of the other side of forty. He must be a man who has arrived; who can make estimates; can judge of things; a man who has achieved and made his mark in the world. I don't like young men. Young men with sporting tendencies bore me. Most men, anyway, would be too solicitous of an artist wife."

Can you imagine who this American fiance of Miss Farrar may be, knowing these qualifications he must have? Anyway, Miss Farrar won't tell.

Under the Couch, Tra, la!

How about that man under the couch in Miss Garden's stateroom. When the steward opened the door before the famous diva, the latter drew back aghast before the odor of strong cigar smoke. She made a search. She saw a shoe poking out from under the couch. The steward shouted. Perhaps he was a stowaway hidden there—perhaps an admirer.

"The darling fellow," said Miss Garden. "Maybe he's tried to see me for years. How he must have loved me to run such a risk."

Finally, they drew out the wearer of the shoe. He proved to be a portly man who had strayed into the wrong cabin.

"Throw him to the sharks," said Miss Garden. "I'm sure he never came to see me."

It turned out that the "unknown" was a member of a party to see the great Chruse off on the same steamship. The sailing of the Kaiser Wilhelm marked the first of the annual Spring operatic exodus to Europe.

Miss Thacher Is Hunting For Lost Dog Hoolie Still

Speaking of Miss Ramona Borden, who has just been found, did you notice that Hoolie is still among the missing?

Hoolie is Miss Hop. Thacher's blooded Airedale.

Miss Hope Thacher is "Tom" Thacher's charming daughter.

"Tom" Thacher is the Cape District's favorite son and Congressman.

Hoolie disappears just as readily as Nat Goodwin gets married. This is the fourth time in each instance.

On the fourth disappearance of Hoolie, Miss Thacher advertised as usual. No Hoolie! Later she renewed the advertisement. Still no Hoolie!

About this time Congressman "Tom," with parental peculiarity, remarked that Hoolie wasn't worth all that advertising. Miss Thacher sniffed at this aspersion on Hoolie's Anglish worth.

Now comes the third renewal of the advertisement.

Where CAN that Hoolie dog be? Has he met "foul" play? Has the dog catcher got him? Has he yielded to the Spring wanderlust?

Mrs. Gill Denies New Rumor She Is to Marry Colpus

CHICOPEE, April 30.—Mrs. Mary A. Gill put a quietus today on the revived report that she is to wed Henry Holden Colpus, formerly of Chicopee, who says he is a half-brother of King George of England. Speaking from a front window of her home at No. 516 Front street, Mrs. Gill said:

"It is not true that I am to marry Mr. Colpus. I am not going to California to marry him. I am not going to California at all. Neither is Mr. Colpus coming to Chicopee again to marry me."

The marriage recently planned by them did not take place at the last moment because certain clergymen refused to perform the ceremony. It was said then that Colpus, who was starting West, would return and marry Mrs. Gill later.

AUSTRIA HAS NOT RECALLED HER MINISTER

LONDON, April 30.—A telegram from Cettinje states that the report that Baron Giesel von Gieslingen, Austrian Minister to Montenegro, had been recalled, is premature. It was learned here from a non-official source that Count von Berchtold, the Austrian Foreign Minister, has informed the Powers that Austria will make no overt move against Montenegro until after the meeting of the Ambassadors here tomorrow.

LICENSE DELAY MAY FORCE DRY DAY IN CHELSEA

Several Chelsea saloons will be unable to open tomorrow, and it is possible that every bar in the city may be closed.

It all depends on whether Chairman James E. Flno of the Licensing Board, who has won a decision from Judge Lorling of the Supreme Court that Mayor Willard must recognize him as chairman, decides to sign the licenses on which the board has acted.

Action has been taken on twenty-seven of the thirty-two licenses allowed by law, but Chairman Flnn has not yet signed the certificates.

A few days ago Mayor Willard named Rensselaer Towle as chairman of the Licensing Board, after which that body pending the decision of Judge Lorling, suspended activities. Now the allotted time has elapsed in the cases of a number of the saloons, and the proprietors will be forced to again advertise according to law before they can open their places of business.

Vonnoh Portrait of Gen. Adams Is Coming to Boston

WASHINGTON, April 30.—A full length portrait painting of General Charles Francis Adams, historical writer and lawyer, of Boston, and president of the Massachusetts Historical Society, has been placed on exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Last night it was viewed by Mrs. Wilson, wife of the President, and scores of Washington friends of the Boston man.

The portrait is by Robert Vonnoh of New York. The painting will be taken to Boston, where it will be shown in the Museum of Fine Arts. It then will be exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Vonnoh has painted the portraits of the late Chief Justice Fuller, former Attorney-General John W. Griggs, former Comptrollers Eckels and Lacey, and former Postmaster-General Charles Emory Smith.

Bryan Uses Crest of President on His Invitations

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Society is marveling at the unique invitations sent out by Secretary of State and Mrs. Bryan to a reception in honor of members of Congress.

These invitations bear the crest of the United States at the top, a prerogative usually exercised only by the President. The cards are written in long hand and request that answers be sent to the State Department.

The reception is expected to be one of the most brilliant of the new regime and will be held in the old Logan house.

Golden Dome The Distinctive Tea

"The Joker" In the Tea-Pot

occurs in the bewildering cost of tea-packing.

Every time you consume a pound of package tea and cast aside the expensive package, you probably throw away 8c. or more of the original purchase price. Is it any wonder that the American people are called the most extravagant on earth?

"Investigation by the state department of weights and measures has shown that the selling of FOODSTUFFS IN PACKAGES costs householders from 33 1-3 to 150 per cent MORE than it would if the same articles were purchased in bulk."

The very fact that Golden Dome Teas are not burdened with this needless cost of expensive packages permits us to make the quality of every variety a revelation to tea-lovers.

CASSIDY HOLDS STATE HEALTH MEN TO BLAME FOR MANY FOOD EVILS

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Massachusetts State Board of Health is responsible for many of the food frauds perpetrated upon the people of this Commonwealth.

The State Board and the State's inferior food laws divide the responsibility. But if the State Board were efficient, even poor laws could be made to accomplish more than they do.

The State Board of Health was bitterly attacked yesterday, at a hearing before the committee on Public Health on the question of reorganizing the Board. Junius T. Auerbach, Henry Sterling and former Representative John H. Coggswell favored reorganization.

Dr. Charles P. Putnam of Boston and Dr. Mark W. Richardson, secretary of the Board, defended it.

I want to quote some of the things that were said—without comment. You who read may draw your own conclusions.

Mr. Auerbach said in part:

"There is a lot of talk about how far Massachusetts is ahead of other States in her laws. That is stuff, and bosh and rot, as this committee knows. We have good and bad—but the most inefficient body in the Commonwealth is the State Board of Health.

"The State Board of Health is like a mass of barnacles on the bottom of a ship. It retards progress. It is unprogressive, inefficient, reckless.

Need New Type of Secretary.

"We need a new kind of secretary—not a corridor-haunting appropriation hunter. We need a board of doctors, devoted to the work. Then, even the present poor laws could be made effective—as they are not today. The other day Mr. Cassidy inspected one of the largest bakeries of Boston. I asked him his opinion of the plant. 'IT'S A DIRTY DUMP,' he said. The State Board could prevent that.

Speaks for A. F. of L.

Henry Sterling, representing the American Federation of Labor, urged that the members of the board be put on a salary basis. He said:

"So long as unskilled men are on this board, we have represented only the academic line of thought. Our organization would be glad to see a recess committee with the task of reorganizing the board.

"All the laboring men of the State feel that the board has not lived up to its responsibility."

Mr Sterling was asked about the diploma awarded the State Board recently for the best exhibit of improvements in factory equipment. He said:

"I don't know that, but I do know that Massachusetts has a larger infant mortality than any country we call civilized; I know that ninety-five in one thousand slum children in Boston are dying, and that twenty-nine in one thousand die in Dorchester.

"I know, too, that thousands of children are dying needlessly. SEVEN THOUSAND CHILDREN DIE ANNUALLY IN MASSACHUSETTS WHO WOULD LIVE IF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH FULFILLED ITS OPPORTUNITIES.

"The Board has done much in forty years, but the total is insignificant compared with what it should have done."

Dr. Charles P. Putnam of Boston defended the Board, and then Dr. Mark W. Richardson, the secretary, presented graphic proof of the improvement in conditions during the last twenty-five years. He showed that the death rate has decreased from seventeen to fifteen, and that deaths from consumption have decreased by 200 in the 100,000; from typhoid by forty in the 100,000; and from diphtheria by eight in the 100,000. He introduced into evidence a pamphlet prepared by Hiram F. Mills, sanitary engineer, embodying these charts of death-rate decrease.

Ex-Representative Coggswell of Lynn attacked the board bitterly. He said:

"For three years I have been in touch with this board and have found out many things about it. I have found—and I charged him with this in his face—that Dr. Richardson, the secretary, is employed by the Equitable Life Insurance Society. The assistant secretary is practically the whole board.

Had to Ask Assistant.

"The other day at a hearing before the Commission on Economy and Efficiency, Dr. Richardson was asked question after question for the answer to which he was obliged to turn to Dr. Hanson, his assistant.

"To show how high politics runs—Dr. Mark Richardson, the secretary is related to the late Dr. Maurice Richardson—who in turn married into the Walcott family. Dr. Henry P. Walcott is chairman of the board—and Dr. Richardson's appointment as secretary followed.

Representative Chas. L. Underhill Is Fighting Pure Food Legislation

DO YOU WONDER WHY?

When He Has Voted AGAINST These Bills:

To prevent sale of diseased foods.
To establish standard for butter.
To define milk and pure milk.
To authorize establishment of municipal lighting plants.
To abolish extra charges for the use of gas meters by small consumers.
To stronger regulate public service corporations.
To establish uniform rates for electricity.
Initiative and referendum.
Direct election of United States Senators.
Federal income tax.
Eight hours for public employes.
Speedy trials for poor plaintiffs.
Eighty-cent gas for East Boston.
Fine and imprisonment for railroad officials for violations of law.
Pure milk.

He has voted IN FAVOR OF bills:

Permitting New Haven to gobble up trolleys of western Massachusetts.
Creating Boston Holding Company, through which New Haven secured control and wrecked the Boston & Maine.

Do you WONDER that this person objects to laws that will protect your wives and children from dishonest merchants and manufacturers who deal in rotten eggs, in impure and adulterated foods, and that he votes to protect dealers who swindle by selling water for butter?

DISH OF ICE CREAM HAS OVER A BILLION BACTERIA, SAYS FROST

Professor W. D. Frost of the University of Wisconsin and the Boston Milk and Baby Hygiene Association says there are bacteria by the billion in ice cream.

"There are 1,200,000,000 bacteria in the average dish of ice cream sold, or 120,000,000 bacteria to the spoonful," he informed members of the Women's Municipal League.

He said:

It is a mistaken idea that freezing kills all bacteria, for while this is true of water, it is not true of milk, and more than this the cream is not kept at the freezing point. Through the use of gelatine stiffening, itself harmless, the ordinary crystalization of the milk that takes place with putrefaction cannot occur.

SCISSOR OUT CYCLOPEDIA COUPON NOW

There will be a repetition of the great demand for Everybody's Cyclopedia next Friday and Saturday.

Every reader should have a set of this beautiful and useful five-volume reference set, thousands of which have already been given out.

You will not need an extra bookcase to hold this complete set of books, for it takes less than half as much space as the ordinary encyclopedia.

Yet the information is all in—thousands upon thousands of subjects which cover the entire world and its peoples. Think of the many advantages in having all this information in such convenient form that it can be referred to "in a minute" without the necessity of searching through numerous large, unhandy volumes to get it!

The convenience of this edition makes it far more desirable than any similar work published. It saves time in reference and it saves room in the library.

It is, indeed, a rare bargain when you stop to consider it—a $12 set of modern reference books, with magnificent colored plates, full-page and double-page engravings, text illustrations and educational charts, all for one coupon and $1.08. There is no other charge and you get the complete set at once.

The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out-of-town readers can have them for $1.98, the set to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver.

Find the coupon printed elsewhere in today's paper and present it Friday or Saturday.

COLDWELL AND LUNN MAY DAY ORATORS

Joseph M. Coldwell, the Milford strike leader, is scheduled to address the Ford Hall meeting tomorrow in the May Day celebration. Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, N. CASSIDY PRAISES M'CARTHY'S FIGHT FOR PURE FOOD

Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert, spoke last night before the members of the Rockland Commercial Club, at the Hotel Thomas, Rockland. He spoke on the fight for pure food in the Legislature, and praised the work of Senator Charles F. McCarthy.

"Senator McCarthy," he said, "has been a leader of the fight in the Senate. He has stood side by side with Senators Ward, Clark, Fisher, Horgan and the others, and has fought a good fight for you and the other people of the State. These men who champion food bills at once identify themselves as friends of the people and enemies of the 'interests,' for every crooked interest in the State has united to fight the measures Senator McCarthy and the others are championing."

HUNT FIREBUG IN NORTH END

The second mysterious fire in two weeks occurred in the wholesale grocery house of M. O'Keefe at No. 92 Richmond street, North End, early today. The fire caused a damage of $1,000 and is believed to have been set.

Patrolman Sonneman of the Hanover street station saw smoke belching from windows on the second floor of the four-story brick block and sounded an alarm. The firemen found a stubborn blaze in progress.

MRS. RAYMOND WOULD FORGET HACKETT CASE

"I don't care what Richard J. Dunbar or any one else says about the Mattie Hackett murder," said Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond today when told of Richard J. Dunbar's confession that he knew and helped the man who murdered Mattie Hackett in Readfield, Me., in August, 1906.

"I had enough of the Hackett case in the past eight years. I am living here with my husband and daughter and trying to forget all about the case."

Mrs. Raymond was interviewed at S. E. Annis' camp, between Rockport and Sumner, Me., by the AMERICAN. Three grand juries and the trial and acquittal of Mrs. Raymond for her life have failed to clear up the mystery of the murder.

Maine Official Busy.

District Attorney William H. Fisher of Augusta, Me., said today he may go to New York for a personal interview with Dunbar.

"I may decide to go to New York and hear Dunbar's confession," said Mr. Fisher. "Part of his confession rings true. But it has a strange ring to me in some of its details.

"I'm going to see Sheriff Colby Getchell of Kennebec County today. We'll go over the evidence and see how well Dunbar's confession fits with the real story of the crime.

"Now that the story has reached the newspapers I suppose I shall be forced to go to New York and see this man."

Dunbar's confession made to Detective William T. Judge of the Greenpoint avenue station of Brooklyn, N. Y., says he was the man who purchased the window sash cord used to strangle Mattie Hackett near her father's farm. He further claims to know the man who actually committed the crime.

Notified of Confession.

District Attorney Lee of Readfield has also been notified of the confession. He is to join District Attorney Fisher in conference today. With the sheriff the two attorneys will go over the evidence and decide what action they ought to take to unravel the mystery of Mattie Hackett's death.

Dunbar's confession of the crime came from his desire, he said, to escape being haunted by the face of the girl for whose murder Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond was tried in April, 1912.

In its details it coincides with peculiar evidence which, although not told to the jury in the Raymond trial, was heard by Judge Whitehouse while the jury was deliberating. The judge ordered no legal injustice done to Mrs. Raymond.

Copies of the confession have been sent to the Boston police. They are now investigating the part Dunbar said he had in the murder.

Dunbar did not name the murderer, according to the New York police. He claimed that he bought the window sash cord at Brock's store in Augusta, Me., which was used to strangle Mattie Hackett.

IMPORTANT THAT PEOPLE SHOULD KNOW ABOUT SUCH A MEDICINE

I was afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for about eight years, a part of the time confined to my bed. I doctored with several doctors and tried other remedies, with no results. Words can't tell the misery that I suffered. I also would say that I had to get up several times during the night, symptoms very serious. My appetite was very poor. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root advertised so highly that I decided to give it a fair trial. After taking one bottle I improved so nicely I continued until I took several bottles of Swamp-Root. I am able now to do my own work and am enjoying good health. I cheerfully recommend Swamp-Root to others with kidney and bladder trouble.

Yours truly,
REBECCA OGDEN,

A Little Knowledge Is a Dangerous Thing

When you are so sick that the world looks blue, your body feels heavy, the head aches, the stomach is out of order, it is dangerous to say: "Oh, well, I'll be better by tomorrow" — or to take something which will do more harm than good.

Such a condition shows a Liver Disorder, which in turn affects the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous System. Neglected, it may lead to more serious disease. Mighty results at once. Remember—it must be mildly irritant, but—remember—it must be mildly irritant, but not a drug which moves your bowels. Think! Your Liver is sick and that is the most important of your organs; then the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous System need a combination of substances which will act on the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Nerves. That is the way Dr. Pierce's Discovery—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—is scientifically and its combination is designed to be most valuable by eminent physicians and scientists. They are not an experiment. You need not take from one to ten pills to see if they work, one or two pills at night are enough. They make you feel fine in the morning. Buy them of your druggist or send 50 cents in stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive them by mail from A. Buffalo, New York.

"SOUL MATES" WIN LEGAL APPROVAL

Referee Rules That:

Margaret Chase has been able by the force of her personality, to monopolize the affections of Hartley Dennett, another woman's husband, and at the same time to retain the affection of her own husband.

Both the Chase home in Brookline and the Chase farm at East Alstead are homes of comfort and refinement, and . . . afford an ideal environment for the growth and development of childhood.

Hartley Dennett and Margaret Chase are highly refined . . . In spite of the fact that they are living together under the same roof the people of the town of Alstead hold them in high regard.

MRS. CHASE'S PERSONALITY PRAISED

"That the affection between the parties is apparently purely intellectual, distinguishes this case from the usual case of a married woman becoming infatuated with another woman's husband."

In that one sentence, ex-Senator Frederick H. Dallinger, as referee, in a remarkable report went up the result of his investigation into the case of Hartley Dennett, the architect, who is now living at East Alstead, N. H., a "soul-mate" life with Mrs. Margaret Chase, wife of Dr. H. Lincoln Chase of Brookline. Following ex-Senator Dallinger's report, Judge Hall in the East Cambridge Court granted the custody of Dennett's two children to Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, the suffering leader, who secured a divorce from her husband.

In his report, Referee Dallinger says:

It is evident from all the facts in this case that Margaret Chase, a talented and forceful woman, has been able by the force of her personality, to monopolize the affections of Hartley Dennett, another woman's husband, and at the same time to retain the affection of her own husband, who is apparently content to enjoy the society of his wife only on these comparatively rare occasions when she sees fit to permit him to do so. Both Mrs. Chase and Mr. Dennett, although plainly violating some of their marriage vows, and defying the universally accepted conventions of society, apparently honestly and sincerely believe that they are doing what is right, and that they are following the dictates of their own conscience. In the case of Mr. Dennett, this obedience to conscience is the reason advanced for his refusal to comply with the decree of the court, ordering him to provide for the education and maintenance of his children.

The Finding.

Upon all the evidence I find as follows:

(1)—The libelee, Hartley Dennett, living as he is with his wife and another man and dependent in large measure upon the bounty of that man for support, and holding the views as to life and conduct that he does, as disclosed by his acts and by his own testimony, is not a fit person to have the care and custody of either of his children.

(2)—The libellant, Mary Ware Dennett, is in every way a fit person to have the custody of her two children.

(3)—The comfort, happiness and future welfare of the two children of Mary Ware Dennett and Hartley Dennett demand that the former have the exclusive custody of their mother.

Married in Boston.

I find the following to be the material facts in the case: On January 20, 1900, the libellant, whose maiden name was Mary Coffin Ware, by profession an artist and decorator, and the libelee, William Hartley Dennett, now known as Hartley Dennett, an architect by profession, were married in King's Chapel, Boston, each taking the marriage vows as set forth in the Anglican prayer book.

At the time of their marriage the libellant was twenty-seven and the libelee twenty-three years of age. Three children were born to them, of whom two are living, Carleton Dennett, born December 23, 1900 and Devon Dennett, born May 12, 1905.

The permanent custody of these two children is the question at issue. Having similar tastes, interested in the same things, and having a deep affection for one another and for their children, their married life was an ideal one.

The husband and father was eminently successful in his chosen profession and the wife lovingly assisted him in his work. Together they planned and built their home in Framingham, the title to which was and still is in the libellant.

At the time of the birth of the youngest child, Devon, Mrs. Dennett suffered severe injuries necessitating surgical treatment in a hospital in New York City. During her absence from home, Mr. Dennett saw a great deal of Mrs. Margaret Chase, wife of Dr. H. Lincoln Chase of Brookline, for whom in the course of his professional duties he designed and superintended the construction of a dwelling house on Kenyard Road in that town.

As time went on, this acquaintance ripened into a deep affection described by Mr. Dennett as "a very real and splendid thing in his life." Upon Mrs. Dennett's return to her home, she found that her husband's attitude toward her had completely changed, and in spite of her protests both to him and to Mrs. Chase he persisted in devoting more and more of his time and companion ship to Mrs. Chase, and less and less to her, his chosen wife.

In March, 1906, Mrs. Dennett had an interview with Mrs. Chase, in which she pleaded with her as a wife and mother, to discontinue her growing intimacy with Mr. Dennett. On March 5, 1906, Mrs. Chase wrote a letter to Mrs. Dennett, in which she absolutely refused to comply with Mrs. Dennett's request, and stating that neither her marriage vows to Dr. Chase or Mr. Dennett's to Mrs. Dennett should be allowed to interfere with the free expression of the deep and sincere love existing between herself and Mr. Dennett.

After the receipt of this letter Mrs. Dennett declined further correspondence with Mrs. Chase and refused to meet her. In April, 1906, Mr. Dennett, in spite of the earnest pleadings of his wife, that he remain with her and the children, went to East Alstead, N. H., with Mrs. Chase, and spent ten days alone with her in a Summer camp owned by Dr. Chase.

While they were at East Alstead Mrs. Dennett's mother, Mrs. Ware, wrote a letter to Mr. Dennett, pleading with him to come home to his wife and children, to which he paid no attention. In the Summer of 1906 Mrs. Dennett refused to go to Alstead or to permit the oldest son to go there, although the year before she had spent the Summer there with her husband and children.

During the remainder of the year 1906, and during the Spring of 1907, Mr. Dennett spent most of his time at the Chase home in Brookline, an arrangement apparently satisfactory to Dr. Chase, and his visits to his own home became more and more infrequent.

From the beginning, Mr. Dennett has consistently refused to comply with the decree of the court, ordering him to provide for the education and maintenance of his children, although he did offer on one occasion to send money to Mrs. Dennett as a gift and not as a duty, which she refused to accept on that condition.

Lives With Mrs. Chase.

Mr. Dennett, soon after the decree of the Probate Court granting to his wife the exclusive custody of his children, gave up his office in Boston. At the present time he is living with Mrs. Chase and the Chase children, in a brick farmhouse on an extensive farm owned by Dr. Chase at East Alstead, N. H.; his only apparent occupation being that of a farmer.

The expenses of maintaining the establishment, over and above the income realized from the sale of products of the farm are paid by Dr. Chase, who, with the exception of occasional brief visits to the farm, spends his time in the practice of his profession in Brookline, Mass. His Brookline home is in charge of a housekeeper, and he has a number of people boarding with him.

Mrs. Chase, Mr. Dennett and the Chase children, with the exception of occasional visits to the Chase home in Brookline, spend most of the year at the farm at East Alstead, N. H.; the children attending a most excellent district school at Alstead Centre. The farm at East Alstead is located in the New Hampshire hills, with the best of mountain air and scenery and was purchased by Dr. Chase on account of his wife's health being impaired by reason of tuberculosis of the lungs.

Both the Chase home in Brookline and the Chase farm at East Alstead are homes of comfort and refinement, and so far as physical and intellectual surroundings are concerned, they afford an ideal environment for the growth and development of childhood.

Personally both Hartley Dennett and Margaret Chase are highly educated and refined people, deeply interested in many good causes having for their aim the improvement of the human race.

In spite of the fact that they are living together under the same roof in the farm house at East Alstead, the people of the town of Alstead generally, both men and women, hold them in high regard. The fact that Dr. Chase is apparently satisfied with this existing state of affairs undoubtedly accounts in a large measure for this unusual state of public opinion.

McManigal Plans to Have Surgeons Help in Disguise

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 30.—Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter, is planning to have his appearance altered by surgery when he is freed.

It is reported that his release from the county jail may be granted at any time, and McManigal hopes so to change himself that no one will know him as the man whose testimony sent the McNamara brothers and more than a score of labor union officials to prison. Police officials say his release will be kept secret to aid him.

McManigal fell from a wagon when a child and the wheel inflicted an injury on his head and left a long scar across his forehead.

ROMANCE IN LIFE OF HULBERT TOLD AT WILL CONTEST

A romance in the life of Edwin J. Hulbert, the discoverer of the famous Calumet & Hecla mines, was revealed at the hearing in the contest of his will before Judge McLaughlin in the Superior Court at Fall River.

Mr. Hulbert died in 1910 in Rome, Italy. He left his entire estate to Miss Christa Messeto Hulbert Carson, a pretty and vivacious Italian girl he met while traveling in Italy.

He made no provision in his will for his daughter, Mrs. Eliza S. Barnwell of London, England, or his grandson, Allen S. Hulbert, who are contesting the will.

It developed that though Mr. Hulbert discovered the famous mines, all that he obtained was the income of a trust fund of $100,000 set aside for him by Quincy A. Shaw, who gained control of the mines when he and Hulbert dissolved partnership.

BIG CARGOES OF LOBSTERS IN PORT

During the past few days the receipts of lobsters at Boston have been the largest in years. The Yarmouth and Halifax boats bring from 500 to 800 crates of 150 pounds each on their trips and the smacks from the Maine Coast and Bay of Fundy are coming in with big fares. Many of the lobsters are shipped to New York and to inland cities, but the greater portion are sold in and around Boston. The wholesale price has dropped.

A Blessing to Victims Of "Sore Foot" Agony

Wile following is said to be the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments. Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for fully fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts. The sores soon disappear, the feet feel delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off, it gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house.—Advertisement.

"FREE CATTLE" NOW PREDICTED BY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The House resumed the tariff grind today with the expectation of sitting until 11 o'clock tonight.

Majority Leader Underwood says he is confident the bill can be passed by a week from tomorrow, and is determined to keep the legislative wheels in motion until Marathon orators capitulate.

The Ways and Means Committee today agreed to an amendment to the Underwood bill, the effect of which will be to increase the duties on telescopic instruments from 25 to 30 per cent. It was predicted today that when the agricultural schedule is reached the committee will accept an amendment putting cattle on the free list. Meat already has been made free, and there has been a strong agitation for free cattle.

The committee has heretofore favored duty on cattle by the narrow margin of one vote, and it was reported several of the committeemen had experienced a change of heart.

Underwood has expressed satisfaction with the progress already made. Snare and of good humor, the Ways and Means Committee chairman nevertheless shows the strain under which he is laboring.

Democratic members are taking only a perfunctory interest in the proceedings, and most of the debate comes from the Republican side of the House. The majority leader remains fixed in his purpose not to resort to a gag rule unless that action is necessary.

John J. Attridge of City Council to Wed Margaret Roche

Former President John J. Attridge, of the Boston City Council, has deserted the ranks of the bachelor Council, and announces his engagement to Miss Margaret H. Roche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Roche of Cohasset, and a well-known newspaper writer.

The romance is said to date back twelve years ago, when Councilor Attridge was a clerk in a Boston business house and his fiancee was a stenographer there.

President Thomas J. Kenny, Walter L. Chiffen and Timothy Buckley are now the only members of the City Council remaining bachelors.

Seedless Fruit

Tinless Tobacco

MEN, the New Tobacco Idea is MASCOT

People laughed when they first heard of seedless fruit. They said: "How can you grow seedless fruit without using seeds?" Then Luther Burbank happened along and showed them how.

Yours on the Level
B. A. Mascot

For years men were contented with producing the regulation old "nickel tobacco"—until B. A. Mascot came along and figured out the MASCOT idea:

A ten cent quality and quantity tobacco for 5 cents.

Not just an ordinary nickel brand—but beautiful high-grade Burley, the richest and choicest that Kentucky grows.

How could I do it without losing money?

MASCOT
CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO
The Brand New Idea in Smoking Tobacco

can now be bought for 5 cents because I decided to cut out the tin-box cost which keeps up the price of other pipe-tobaccos. I could not give you my high-quality tobacco and pay the heavy costs which the tin box lays on the manufacturer—so I put MASCOT up in an inexpensive but much handier moisture-proof cloth pouch.

That one little item—overlooked by everybody else—allows me to double for you the value of your tobacco money.

Men, I am strictly "on the level." I tell you I have discovered the one way to market a high-class tobacco at a low price. One trial of MASCOT will prove to you that I am telling the truth.

Try it today; save yourself money; and at the same time give yourself the best smoke you ever had.

Mrs. R. T. Crane Has a Brilliant Wedding in Paris

PARIS, April 30.—One of the most brilliant American weddings ever held in Europe today united in marriage Francis T. A. Junkin, a rich lawyer of New York and Calcago, to Mrs. R. T. Crane of Chicago, widow of a multi-millionaire ironmaster.

Mrs. Crane was married under her maiden name, Miss Emily Hutchinson. The civil ceremony took place this morning in the office of the mayor of the eighth arrondissement and the religious ceremony was held this afternoon in Holy Trinity Church, on the Avenue d'Alma.

Miss Hutchinson was married to R. T. Crane in Chicago in 1903. At that time the groom was seventy years of age and the bride was thirty-four. Instead of settling a dowry upon his wife, Mr. Crane gave his bride a wedding present of $1,000,000. Mr. Crane died last year. Mr. Junkin was born in Virginia in 1864. For a number of years he was chief counsel for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad.

CALIFORNIA TO RUSH THROUGH LAW TO BAR JAPS AS LAND OWNERS

pany for ordnance powder was shown by evidence in the government's suit for the dissolution of the monopoly. It was shown that the Dupont Company made about all the smokeless powder outside of the comparatively small amount manufactured by the government itself.

The total amount of powder purchased last year by the government cost $4,515,000.

Japanese began to investigate the country around Haskell shortly after the United States government began work on the Panama Canal.

Arthur Romain, son of the proprietor of the Lakeside Hotel, said he accompanied a Japanese on a three-day trip to the mountain top last Spring.

"The Japanese said he represented the Japanese government," said young Romain. "He said Japan wanted some good farm land and it was big object as to find it. I thought it strange that he picked out mountain tops."

RUSH THROUGH BILL TODAY TO BLOCK THE JAPS IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 30.—The Webb draft of the anti-alien land bill, adopted by the California Senate, is expected to pass through the various legislative stages in time to be laid before Governor Johnson late tomorrow. California, aroused by the aggressive plans of Japanese residents, is standing firm against the efforts of secretary of State Bryan to check the legislation.

"No sufficient reason has thus far been presented that should cause California to halt in any contemplated legislation," Governor Johnson declared today.

The new bill is drawn in strict conformity with the treaty between Japan and the United States. All efforts to secure an opinion from Secretary Bryan or President Wilson failed, and the State leaders decided forthwith to proceed with their plans for enacting it into a law.

It is generally believed here that the new act will accomplish the ends said to be desired by the people of the State, namely, prevention of the further acquisition by Japanese subjects of farming lands and ranches.

Explaining the wording of his bill, Mr. Webb said:

Our theory is that at the time the treaty was framed Japan asked for all the rights as to ownership of land in California that that nation desired for her subjects, and that the treaty as it now stands represents all that Japan asked and all that the United States was willing to grant.

This act does not draw the line upon aliens who are ineligible to citizenship. Those words are not used. It gives not only to Japan, but to every nation whose subjects are ineligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States, the full rights to ownership of land in California that the treaties between the United States and such nations give.

The Governor said further:

The conferences between the Secretary of State and the Legislature are concluded. We were delighted with Mr. Bryan, and all that he said was given the most attentive consideration.

Every opportunity was accorded him, and the conference closed only when he stated that he had nothing further to say.

The members of the government of California, with unanimity, expressed themselves as desiring to aid the national government and in no wise to embarrass it. The spirit pervading the meeting was one of friendly cooperation and full of patriotic purpose.

Attorney-General U. S. Webb drafted the new measure at the suggestion of Governor Johnson. Its principal features are:

1—All aliens eligible to citizenship may acquire and hold land in the same manner as citizens of the United States.

2—All other aliens may acquire and hold land in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject.

3—Corporations composed of aliens other than those who are eligible to citizenship may acquire and hold land only according to the terms of existing treaties.

4—Present holdings of aliens, regardless of their rights to citizenship, are protected.

5—The State specifically reserves its sovereign right to enact any and all laws relating to the acquisition or holding of real property by aliens.

LADY DURAND DIES.

LONDON, April 30.—Lady Durand, wife of Sir Mortimer Durand, late British Ambassador at Washington, is dead.

COYLY ADMITS MARRIAGE SHE FIRST DENIED

Rev. Reuben Kidner wins.

Virginia Millinan now admits that she is Mrs. Harold Sturgis, bride of a former Boston newspaperman.

Mr. Kidner is assistant rector of Trinity Church. Mrs. Sturgis is the leading lady of a stock company now playing in Brockton. She was to be married by Mr. Kidner to Mr. Sturgis at midnight Saturday night. The clergyman affirmed Sunday that he did marry a Virginia Millinan to a Harold Sturgis.

But the charming actress denied that SHE was the Virginia Millinan who was married—"Oh no, not I—besides Mr. Sturgis and I did not go by automobile to Boston that night—we went to Providence."

Then the clergyman reaffirmed that he had married such a couple, no mistake about it.

Today Brockton people read a signed statement by the actress, coyly admitting her marriage. She had denied it.

"Why?"

"Well, because."

"Because why?"

"Well, I thought it might injure my business, so near the end of the season."

LOBSTER MASCOT ON FISHING BOAT

Captain Brophy's schooner Ellen and Mary is at T Wharf today with 106,000 pounds of fish and a prize lobster for a mascot. The fish brought a good price, but the lobster was not sold. It was too good a mascot. John Muse caught the lobster, which weighs twelve pounds, on a trawl. He tied its claws. A sixteen-foot dory is close quarters for one man and a twelve-pound lobster, and they had a lively time of it. After that, the crew who had been having poor luck, could not bait and tend trawls fast enough.

GENERAL AMES CAMP LOWELL VETERANS, AIDS MAINE FUND

The Maine Memorial fund continues to grow. General Adelbert Ames Camp, No. 19, Massachusetts Department United Spanish War Veterans, of Lowell, today contributes $5. In a letter accompanying this donation the Camp wishes the Heart press every success in its efforts to raise the $40,000 still needed to complete the Memorial to the Battleship Maine and her martyr dead.

Spurred on by the offer of William Randolph Hearst to contribute a dollar for every dollar secured from any other source, the Spanish War Veterans are contemplating assessing themselves to help swell the fund. The Women's Auxiliaries also are eager to assist.

Louis Morimiere of No. 361 Lowell avenue, Newtonville, the only survivor of the ill-fated Maine in Newton, says he is anxious to be present at the dedicatory exercises.

ENGLISH PLAYERS PRESENT "NAN" AT PLYMOUTH THEATRE

"Nan," a tragedy in three acts, was given for the first time in Boston by Miss Horniman's company of English players last night at the Plymouth Theatre.

Irene Rooke in the title role scored a success. Milton Rosmer, as "Nan's" faithless sweetheart, was excellent. Isabel Beresford, as the jealous old woman who made Nan's life miserable, handled her part with great skill. Leonard Mudie, the aged fiddler—one of the four who died in the last act—displayed his ability. Hilda Sims, the cunning and crafty daughter of the jealous old woman who schemed against "Nan," was successful with her part. Others in the cast of "Nan" are Ernest Bodkin, Lionel Briggs, James Wood, Doris Bateman, Sabin Bennett, Cecil Brooking, Howard Cochran and Bert Drummond.

AWAIT COUNCIL VOTE TODAY ON PRISON BOARD

From gossip at the State House today, prior to the Wednesday session of the Governor's Council, it was expected that the council would take some action at this session on Governor Foss' nomination of Frank L. Randall of Minnesota to be chairman of the Massachusetts Prison Commission.

The council's action on this important nomination was awaited with extra interest on account of the diversion which has arisen since the Governor's choice was announced.

Endorsements of Mr. Randall and opposition to him have developed. Several men, among them Councilor Alexander McGregor, have objected to bringing a man from the outside to Lead a Massachusetts commission when, as they maintain, it is not necessary to go out of the State.

Mr. Randall, like the governor, is of Vermont stock, but was born in Minnesota, and for twelve years was general superintendent of the Minesota State Reformatory at St. Cloud. He resigned that position recently.

Meanwhile Governor Foss continues to issue batches of indorsements he has received from various prison and reform authorities commending Mr. Randall highly.

Simple Recipe For Gray Hair

This Simple Home Remedy Darkens It Beautifully.

There is no longer any reason why any person with gray hair should not remove this annoying sign of age and remain in the youthful-looking class; and the best part of it is that one does not have to depend upon the prepared dyes and stains to bring about the desired change. A simple preparation which gradually darkens gray hair, making it soft and glossy and perfectly natural in color and appearance, can be made from an ounce of bay rum, a quarter ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound, procurable at any drug store. Dissolve the Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water, then add the bay rum and glycerine, and you will have a splendid hair darkener, as well as an excellent remedy for dandruff and other humors of the scalp. It also acts as a tonic to the hair follicles, is not sticky, does not rub off or color the scalp, and is both cheap and highly satisfactory in every way.—Advertisement.

CAMBRIDGE AND OXFORD MAY NOT COMPETE HERE

OXFORD, England, April 30.—The athletic authorities of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge have not yet received a formal invitation from the Universities of Harvard and Yale to participate in a track meet at the Harvard Stadium in June or July this year. The secretary of the Oxford University Athletic Union, however, expressed the opinion that it would be impossible to send a team from the English universities in June, as the examinations would then be in progress, while the month of July would, he thought, be too hot.

It became known yesterday that the authorities interested in the proposed dual meet between Oxford and Cambridge and Yale and Harvard are trying to arrange a special race to take place at this meet. It is a one-mile special for which Abel Kivlat, the champion of the Irish-American A. C.; John Paul Jones, holder of the world's one-mile record; Norman Taber of Brown University, and J. A. S. Jackson, the English champion, are to run the Olympic mile, will be invited to compete.

GREAT CROWD SEES NEWMARKET RACES

NEWMARKET, Eng., April 30.—Lured by the 2,000 guineas event, one of the classics of the British turf, a great crowd came to Newmarket today for the second and concluding day of the Spring race meeting. A number of Americans were in the crowd.

The first race for the Wilbraham plate, $1,000, was won by Dark Queen. Vallee was second and Bobbin third.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

WHETHER it is true—as Frank Chance says—that he will not dispose of Hal Chase, it is, nevertheless, a fact that a trade between the Red Sox and Yankees, with Chase as the New York factor, could be arranged to the mutual benefit of both parties. The Sox need a first baseman and have an excess of first-class baseball material elsewhere; the Yankees have an extravagance of first baseman and are as poor as a Georgia pig most anywhere else. Chase is a drag on the New York treasury, while he would not be on the payroll of the Red Sox, particularly, if by virtue of his presence here, enough was added to the team just to turn the scales in favor of a pennant winner.

IF Chance is to play first base for the Yankees and Chase is a failure in every other position, it is pretty expensive business keeping an $8,000 a year man for a substitute. We never knew of a baseball magnate who would stand for it. And we don't believe Frank Farrell will—any longer than it takes to show whether Chance can hold down the first station more or less permanently. If, then, Chance can stick it out at the first corner, it looks reasonably certain that Chase will change his abiding place from New York.

* * *

CHAMPIONSHIP first baseman are scarce just now—men who can play the bag accurately and intelligently and bat as well as an outfielder—and the Red Sox are in dire need of such a man. It looks like "a moral pipe" that the Sox will not repeat unless they get one. A deal of a reliable all-the-year-round first station master in 1914 was the chief cause of the Bostonians falling into the second division. The "come back" of Jake Stahl was one of the chief factors in their success last year. Engle can play that or almost any other position well enough for a time, but experience has shown that he goes back after a limited number of games. This peculiarity has been attributed to his built and point. Engle, himself, played golf all Winter in an effort to correct the fault, and he lieves he succeeded. But no team can win the American League pennant unless it is very nearly airtight all the way around and nearly all of the time.

WE know that Chase had an off-year in 1912, but circumstances outside of baseball have been blamed for that, if the dilapidated condition of the Yankee team last year were not enough in itself to drive any gilt-edged player into an "off-season." With all that, Chase produced these records in 1912:

BATTING.

G.	ab.	r.	h.	2b.	3b.	hr.	th.	sb.	sb.	pc.
151	622	61	142	21	8	4	154	25	23	.274

FIELDING.

G.	po.	a.	e.	pc.
123	1162	79	27	.979

HE batted higher than the following Red Sox: Wagner, Hall, Carrigan, Cady, Yerkes, Nunamaker, Hooper, Engle, Bell, Bedient, Bradley, Collins and O'Brien. His fielding was off, as first baseman go, but Stahl was only one point higher—.980. Speaker was the only Sox who stole more bases than Chase did. Only nine American Leaguers beat him on the sacks. Speaker is the only Sox who made more home runs than Chase did. Speaker, Gardner and Hooper netted more triples and Lewis tied him. Speaker, Gardner, Lewis, Wagner and Yerkes slammed more doubles and Stahl was even with Chase in the two-sack hits.

FOR an off year that is pretty good.

Of course, he did not hit or quite field up to Stahl's work and Stahl's presence on the diamond helped mightily in the Sox success. But in the absence of Stahl, Chase would be a wonderful man to fall back upon. It seems, likely, too, that Chase would play better with the champions than he did with a tail-end outfit where he was in the misfit position of an ex-manager, as well. The Sox have several men whom they could spare in exchange for Chase and who, it seems probable, would help Chance more than Hal seems likely to, if Chance can play first base.

STAHL played in less than two-thirds of the games his team played last year, and, if it is true that his legs have gone back on him seriously, it is more than possible that he will play a lesser percentage than that this season. Therefore, the need of another first-class first baseman is most obvious.

WARREN IS WINNER.

Warren defeated Carroll in the three-cushion tournament at the Imperial last night by a score of 50 to 36. Aumiller and Schutts play tonight.

FANS CLAMOR FOR KILBANE RETURN BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 30.—Coast fight fans today are clamoring for another bout between Kilbane and Johnny Dundee to settle the question of the featherweight supremacy.

Dundee and Kilbane, the champion, battled twenty rounds to a draw at Yeomon last night. It was Kilbane's fight up to the 17th round. Then the little New Yorker began his whirlwind finish that dazed the Cleveland little holder of and forced Eyton to call the bout a draw.

The lovers of fast fighting found satisfaction in watching the bout, but those who fancy slugging were sorely disappointed. Both fighters worked as fast as forked lightning, gave a dazzling display of footwork and dodging ability, but the to-it-toe fight that was promised failed to materialize.

Only about one of every four blows landed, and neither fighter was badly marked when the final bell clanged, although Dundee will carry around a somewhat battered face for several days, as the result of Kilbane's punches in the early rounds.

You stand achile in the crowded aisle
And you carry a heatic frown,
And you up and bleat that you want your seat
And somebody yells: "Sit down!"

An usher speaks and he makes you feel
Like a reuben from off the grange,
He says: "I'll get you a regular seat
If you'll slip me a piece of change."

Slowly but surely the magnates are realizing that they must cater to the public. Umpires are now ordered to wear white raiment so as to make better targets.

"How can Willie Ritchie dodge me now?" asks Tommy Murphy, who does not realize that Mr. Ritchie can dodge a streak of lightning if he thinks it is looking for a fight.

Students are fighting over the control of athletics at Northwestern, demonstrating that a fight need not necessarily have a cause.

Another advantage in being a Federal League magnate is that one never needs worry over the income tax.

Mr. Fogel's present attitude toward baseball demonstrates that it is different when one is outside looking in.

BACK.

As Tyrus Raymond Cobb might aptly say:
"Back to the yard! There'll be no strike today!"

* * *

Being a business asset of considerable import, Mr. Cobb found difficulty in being reinstated, did he not?

* * *

Not only that, but Cobb's holdout stunt gave the Tigers at least $15,000 worth of advertising next to pure reading matter.

As we go to press, Bill Klem leads Fred Merkle for the ivory championship by fourteen cubits and a span.

Tom Lipton is said to be growing impatient, but it behooves him to learn fortitude. He has a heluva long wait before him.

For a President, Mr. Wilson is considerable fan, but he never can qualify as a regular until he has heaved a cushion.

* * *

One is enthused for a moment when he reads that Boston and Pittsburgh played a thirty-two-inning game, but one's enthusiasm drops to 72 below zero, Fahrenheit, when he learns that it was a 0-0 tie.

A glowing example of repression is that of the scribe who calls the absence of Joe Wood a handicap. He might have called it a calamity and still be conservative.

It is alleged that Ty Cobb will behave, but said allegation has not been conveyed to Mr. Sweeney, the celebrated marine.

* * *

Statesmanship has its trials as well as its triumphs. For instance, several of our Aldermen will be forced to attend a ball game.

* * *

It is a well-known fact that one can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, but any capable baseball scribe can make a holocaust out of a stone bruise.

* * *

The youth who swung a pair of Indian clubs for 108 hours went crazy, but there is a deep suspicion that he was that way when he started.

* * *

The report that Bat Nelson has made $15,000 in the last year demonstrates that Phineas T. Barnum had the correct hunch.

* * *

Somehow, we are led to wonder how Willie Ritchie would act if he ever became careless and allowed himself to get into a fight.

M'CARTY MEETS MORAN IN BIG BOUT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, April 30.—Fight fans of the Metropolis are awaiting with a great deal of interest the clash between Luther McCarty, claimant to the world's heavyweight title, and Frank Moran of Pittsburgh at the St. Nicholas Athletic Club tonight, when they are scheduled to go ten rounds.

Moran has been training diligently at Stratford, Ct., where he has assured all of his followers who came to see him time of it tonight.

Joe Jeanette, who had had a little experience in the glove-pushing game, has had charge of Moran's training. McCarty has put in several days' training at Dal Hawkins' roadhouse in Westchester.

Moran is not very well known in the East. He has fought mostly in the West and in Europe. His last fest worthy of note was when he knocked out Al McCloskey in five rounds. In his fight with Gunboat Smith he lost the decision, but managed to stay through twenty rounds of the latter's terrific punches.

McCarty has been guaranteed $5,000, while Moran is to fight on a percentage basis.

CARPENTIER TO BOX BOMBARDIER WELLS

PARIS, April 29.—Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight, and Georges Carpentier, the French champion, today signed articles for a twenty-round contest in this city on June 28. The contest takes place on the eve of the Grand Prix races and is substituted for the Al Palser-Jack Johnson match which was called off a few weeks ago because Johnson failed to post a forfeit.

Pilgrims Meet Phillies Today

Bill James May Work on Mound

By L. R. MURDOCH.

There is just one more chance to get the Phillies and Pilgrims in action before the Bostonians take their four days' journey to Brooklyn.

Two days of rain gave the South Enders an opportunity to break even on a series this afternoon, something that would not have happened if the weather had been otherwise. For the postponement of two games gives Bill James an opportunity to work in the second of the two games played. Everybody knows what James can do, and it would not be astonishing if, in the event that he works, the Pacific Coast giant would get away with the little sticklers from Quakertown.

Another note of the pathetic side of baseball comes from Brooklyn today in the shape of the Giants' box score, in which we see "Nap" Rucker holding McGraw's hitmen scoreless for twelve innings, only to lose out in the thirteenth. What wouldn't many a man with a real ball team give for Rucker, the man who has kept the name of Brooklyn in the geography ever since New York became a real city by swallowing all its neighbors.

On the other hand, though, there's Matty, who shut the Dodgers out with thirteen successive goose eggs. Two years ago we heard that Matty was senile and about to enter the Home for the Aged. Still, they ask us to believe baseball "dope."

CHAMPIOINS OUT TO BEAT YANKS

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Red Sox are eager to take the final game of the series with the New York Yankees, which will be played here today. The world's champions were greatly disappointed when yesterday's contest was halted by wet grounds.

Stahl's men are beginning to strike their stride and are anxious to play as often as possible so as to better their position in the American League pennant race.

Ray Collins or "Buck" O'Brien will be selected to do the honors on the mound for the visitors today. Both of these men are performing in good style and would be sure to make things interesting for Chance's crew. Ray Keating will probably pitch for New York.

The deal between the Red Sox and Yankees, in which it is stated that Hal Chase will go to Boston in exchange for a Red Sox catcher, Jaeris, Ball and Henriksen, is still up in the air. The story is being denied by both the officials of the Boston and New York clubs.

The, however, does not mean that there is no deal under way. Baseball men have never been known to confirm a story which involves the transfer of a star player from one club to another until all of the details of the deal had been completed.

AMATEUR SHOW AT BROCKTON CLUB

There will be an amateur boxing tournament at the St. Patrick's T. A. Society in Brockton tonight. Bouts will be held at 108, 115 and 140 pounds. The show will be an excellent tryout for those lads who are planning to take part in the national championships which will be staged in this city on May 6 and 7. All the Baseball News for All the Boys--In the Boston Sunday American

Beginning Sunday next, th e Boston Sunday AMERICAN will publish the results of ALL OF THE BASEBALL GAMES played by schoolboys and youths, amateurs and semi-professionals in and about Greater Boston.

The Sunday AMERICAN has tried to publish ALL of them heretofore and has usually succeeded—or nearly so. But the uncertainties of space, even in an immense newspaper of 68 pages, have frequently made it necessary to omit some of the scores, to our own disappointment more than to that of the boys.

In the hustle and bustle of publishing about 400,000 great Sunday newspapers within a few hours on Saturday nights, there was no way of determining in advance how many of these games would be played and how much space would be necessary for them. Even if we could have that knowledge, it was impossible to govern the space allotment in the tremendous rush of news and advertising matter which flows into the Boston Sunday AMERICAN office Saturday nights.

But the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, always keenly interested in the boys, has at all times been eager to publish their baseball news fully and HAS NOW ARRANGED TO GIVE THEM ALL THE SPACE NECESSARY TO PRINT ALL THE BALL GAMES OF GREATER BOSTON.

The Sunday AMERICAN asks the co-operation of the boys and youths in getting this news into the office early enough so that we can make sure of publishing it. Men have been engaged to handle this news exclusively, and will receive the scores either by mail, telephone or messenger.

You may call Main 5180, ask for the Sporting Department and deliver your score.

Or you may mail to the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, Sporting Department, No. 80 Summer street, IF YOU ARE SURE THE MAIL WILL BE DELIVERED IN TIME.

Or, BETTER STILL, call personally or send by messenger to the business office of the Sunday AMERICAN at No. 80 Summer street, first floor, where men will be on hand Saturday evening to take the scores and prepare them for publication.

* * *

Owing to the enormous circulation of the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, it is necessary to send the first city edition to press not later than 10:30 p. m., Saturday night, so that the paper will reach its distant subscribers on Sunday morning. It is, therefore, advisable to deliver your scores as much earlier than that as possible—THE EARLIER THE BETTER, both for you and for us.

YOU WILL FIND THE RESULT OF EVERY BASE-BALL GAME IN WHICH YOU ARE INTERESTED IN THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

CHANCE ASKS SPOKE OR JOE FOR HAL CHASE

Manager Frank LeRoy Chance of the New York Yankees IS willing to trade Hal Chase to Boston, IF——

And that IF is a mighty big one. Just listen:

Chance will make the trade IF he can get "Smoky Joe" Wood and Tris Speaker in exchange.

That's just what Chance is quoted as saying, according to a New York dispatch giving the latest light on the reported deal to get Chase for the Red Sox. All of which gives the fans a choice of thinking Chance is talking through his hat or else is poking fun at the talked-of desire of the Red Sox to get the Yankee first baseman.

Here's how Chance told of his conversation regarding an exchange with Manager Stahl of the Red Sox:

Back at First Base.

"Jake Stahl came to see me at the hotel last night and said he'd like to make a trade for Chase if I was in the market. I said I was; I'd trade anybody on the club if I thought I was going to get off all right.

"Then what do you want for Hal? asked Jake.

"'Gimme Tris Speaker and Joe Wood and Harold is yours,' says I.

"That's all there was to the trading of Chase," said the Big Bear between grunts as Doc Harrell sent the tonsure into his narrow. "Stahl did mention a few players, Nunnamaker, his third catcher; Janvrin, his first baseman, and Heartkson, his outfielder, among them. But I told him I'd give him three outlegs for them.

"About Chase—just this: He's one of the greatest first basemen that ever lived. I'm through for awhile because of this bum leg. I'm going to stick Hal back at first, keep Roy Harizell on second—where he's making mighty good—Claude Derrick is all right again and will be at short in the next game, and Midkiff will start away at third.

Ed. Walsh the Jinx.

An inquiry was put to the Peerless One about what he thought of "Chance day" in Chicago, what he was going to do, and so on.

"Well, I'm going to play myself, of course," he said. "And I'm going to try to win. I'll send in the best boy I've got and make a special effort to grab that game. But I suppose (and here he laughed genially) they'll slip me a big horseshoe of flowers and then wish Ed Walsh against me. And that bird has jinxed my clubs more times than any one else in the world."

Chance said he didn't see how any club in the National League was going to stop McGraw and his Giants. He pived them for a sure 1 to 5 winner of the pennant in their organization.

"Christy Matheweson is the best pitcher in the world today, and I believe he will go along at his present clip for three or four years more," said Frank. "That fellow has more stuff that he can put on the ball than anybody dreams of. And he is wise enough not to put it on unless he has to.

NELSON LOSES TO GALLANT IN HARD BOUT

Battling Nelson is no longer the terror of the ring. The "Durable Dane" is but a mere shell of his former self. The Hegewisch idol was forced to lower his colors in defeat to Gilbert Gallant, the twenty-year-old Chelsea lad, in their twelve-round bout at the new Atlas A. A. last night.

"But" fought with all of his old-time courage and determination, but he is as game as ever. But the grizzled warrior was slow on his feet, and his punches lacked steam. The former champion's "tools" are in poor condition.

The best fighting of the entire bout took place in the ninth round, when Gallant riddled Nelson with terrific rights and lefts. "But" refused to retreat a single inch, and kept boring in, while the "fans" cheered wildly.

Nelson would be acting wisely if he retired from the ring. We made a similar suggestion after the veteran warrior was defeated by Pal Moore and "Young" Saylor at the Armory A. A. a year ago last Fall, but "But" still continued to fight on.

Joe Hazan of South Boston was over Jimmy Greenwood of New Bedford in the semi-windup. Terry Brooks of Brooklyn was originally scheduled to meet Hazan, but he got his dates mixed up and at the last minute notified the club that he was signed for a bout in New York last night and could not appear here as he would be black-listed by the New York Boxing Commission if he failed to keep his New York engagement.

Billy Corrigan of Cambridge defeated Young Boyle of Lowell in the opening preliminary of six rounds, while Frankie Mack of Beachmont triumphed over Tom Smith of New York in the other preliminary bout.

PART I.

THE magnate stared in sincere astonishment over this absurd, this futile suggestion for his guidance.

"What do you mean?" he vociferated, with rising indignation. There was an added hostility in his demeanor, for it seemed to him that this thief of his goods whom he had brought to justice was dar ing to trifle with him. He grew wrathful over the suspicion, but a secret curiosity still held his temper within bounds.

"What do you mean?" he repeated, and now the full force of his strong voice set the room trembling.

The tones of the girl came softly musical, made more delicately resonant to the ear by contrast with the man's roaring.

"Why," she said, very gently, "I mean just this: Give them a living chance to be honest."

"A living chance!" The two words were exploded with dynamic violence. The preposterousness of the advice fired Gilder with resentment so pervasive that through many seconds he found himself unable to express the rage that flamed within him.

The girl showed herself undismayed by his anger.

"Yes," she went on, quietly; "that's all there is to it. Give them a living chance to get enough food to eat, and a decent room to sleep in, and shoes that will keep their feet off the pavement in Winter mornings. Do you think that any girl wants to steal? Do you think that any girl wants to risk——"

By this time, however, Gilder had regained his powers of speech, and he interrupted stormily.

A Strange Energy

Nevertheless, Mary went on with her arraignment uncompromisingly. There was a strange, compelling energy in her inflections that penetrated even the psychodynamics officer, so that, though he thought her raving, he let her rave on, which was not at all his habit of conduct, and did indeed surprise him mightily. As for Gilder, he felt helpless in some puzzling fashion that was totally foreign to his ordinary self. He was still glowing with wrath over the method by which he had been victimized into giving the girl a hearing. Yet, despite his chagrin, he realized that he could not send her from him forthwith. By some inexplicable spell she bound him impotent.

"We work nine hours a day," the quiet voice went on, a certain pathos in the rich timbre of it: "nine hours a day, for six days in the week. That's a fact, isn't it? And the trouble is, an honest girl can't live on six dollars a week. She can't do it and buy food and clothes, and pay room-rent and carfare. That's another fact, isn't it?"

Mary regarded the owner of the store with grave questioning in her violet eyes. Under the urgency of emotion, color crept into the pallid cheeks. I now her face was very beautiful—so beautiful, indeed, that for a little the charm of its loveliness caught the man's gaze, and he watched her with a new respect, born of appreciation for her feminine delightfulness. The impression was far too brief. Gilder was not given to aesthetic raptures over women. Always the business instinct was the dominant. So, after the short period of amazed admiration over such unexpected winsomeness, his thoughts flew back again to the matters whereof she spoke so ridiculously.

"I don't care to discuss these things," he declared peremptorily, as the girl remained silent for a moment.

"Do You Know?"

"And I have no wish to discuss anything," Mary returned evenly. "I only want to tell you what you should face facts."

A faint smile of reminiscence curved the girl's lips. "When they first locked me up," she explained, without any particular evidence of emotion, "I used to sit and hate you."

"Oh, of course!" came the caustic exclamation from Gilder.

"And then, I thought that perhaps you did not understand," Mary continued; "that, if I were to tell you how things really are, it might be you would change them somehow."

At this ingenuous statement, the owner of the store gave forth a gasp of sheer stupefaction.

"I!" he cried, incredulously. "I change my business policy because you ask me to!"

"Do you know how we girls live?—but, of course, you don't. Three of us in one room, doing our own cooking over the two-burner gas-stove, and our own washing and ironing evenings, after being on our feet for nine hours."

The enumeration of the sordid details left the employer quite unmoved, since he lacked the imagination necessary to sympathize actually with the straining evil of a life such as the girl had known. Indeed, he spoke with an air of just remonstrance, as if the girl's charges were mischievously faulty.

"I have provided chairs behind the counters," he stated.

There was no especial change in the girl's voice as she answered his defence. It continued musically low, but there was in it the insistent notes of sincerity.

Stirred Uneasily

"But have you ever seen a girl sitting in one of them?" she questioned coldly. "Please answer me. Have you? Of course not," she said, after a little pause, during which the owner had remained silent. She shook her head in emphatic negation. "And do you understand why? It's simply because every girl knows that the manager of her department would think he could get along without her, if he were to see her sitting down —loafing, you know! And she would be discharged. All in amounts to is that, after being on her feet for nine hours, the girl usually is not quite calm, in order to save carfare. Yes, she walks, whether sick or well. Anyhow, you are generally sick or well. Anyhow, you are generally sick or well. Anyhow, you are generally

What the Newly Wed Should Know

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

"MATRIMONY is a fine art. To criticise it properly one must see it at a distance, then one can find the small flaws that sometimes spoil the masterpiece."

Mrs. Isabella Kellie, a writer and a business woman, who has been successful at many things, including matrimony, gives her ideas on this subject to the Newly Weds today.

"A happy marriage is made up of little sacrifices on both sides. When these sacrifices are appreciated by the other half they turn in to mutual pleasures.

"It takes a great deal of thought to make a fine art of matrimony. Few young married people are willing to study each other's needs and make allowances for each other. Married couples soon get into the habit of ordering each about without saying 'please' and 'thank you.' A woman will do many little services for a man if he voices his wants politely and the same applies with equal truth to the other sex.

"Generally one finds when a marriage is not ideal that the couple are suffering from too much of each other's society. In the days when most people lived in houses surrounded by gardens the harassed hero or heroine could flee in the arbor and indulge in the luxury of solitude. But there is no such thing as solitude in the modern flat. And every human being feels the need of being alone and absolutely quiet at times.

Does Not Harp on Trouble

"The girl who has been in business before her marriage realizes that her husband is fagged out when he comes home from his day's work and, if she remembers her own experience, she knows that he can recuperate and get rested sooner if she will refrain from pouring out the trials and tribulations of the day in his ears or adding to his nervous state by a weepy sympathy. Many people are like animals when they are ill or very tired. They want to be left absolutely alone.

"Every person is entitled to a room or den where they can retire and commune with their own souls when they need to do so, without fear of hurting the feelings of the rest of the family. The small apartments where all privacy is impossible have had their share in adding to modern 'Nerves.'

"As modern living conditions make it impossible for people to get the privacy that went with larger houses and more space, that sense of privacy must be recognized and consented and fostered and the odious familiarity that inevitably breeds contempt must be guarded against. One can do it if one is forewarned and I think that problem lies in the hands of the wife.

Love Doesn't Bar Politeness

"Love should not be a bar to politeness and the fact that one is married is no good excuse for forgetting those small phrases that go with a request such as 'Do you mind?' or 'Will you be kind enough?' which one would never omit to a stranger and which smooth the rough places wonderfully.

"There is such a thing as seeing too much of one another and I have known of many couples who seem to forget that a man needs the companionship of other men just as a woman craves that of other women.

"Once the honeymoon is over I think that a man should be allowed one night a week for his club or his friends, providing that the companions are of the right kind, of course. It is a good thing for him to see other men than those he meets in business.

"On the other hand I think later on when there are children and a woman has no nurse for them the father could arrange to take charge of them one evening a week and give the mother an absolute rest, 'an evening off,' to go to the theatre or see her friends and family. Of course, a man says that she has the entire day to herself, but a woman with small children has not a minute day or night to call her own, unless some one else takes the charge of the children.

"There would be fewer bored married couples if men and women cultivated a hobby. The hobby may be anything from suffrage to golf or yachting to suit the income and taste of the individual and husband and wife should not necessarily have the same hobby.

"A diversity of interests of this kind stimulates the mind and helps conversation when the inevitable time comes where husband and wife find that they have nothing new to talk about."

Superfluous Hair Truths

DeMiracle
The Cheapest in the End

If you use a simple toilet preparation and it proves to be worthless, you only lose money. When you use a questionable depilatory, however, it is a very serious matter because you not only lose money, but you take the grave risk of permanent disfigurement.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox's Letters to Girls

NUMBER III—TO THE GIRL WHO IS SORRY FOR HERSELF

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Journal-American-Examiner

TO a girl who is sorry for herself:

Your letter shows me, not how badly Fate treats you, but how badly you are treating yourself.

You are standing outside of yourself, and making a mental picture of misery and neglect, and sorrow, of loneliness and heart hunger—and weeping over it.

That is the easiest and the weakest thing a mortal can do.

I doubt if a human being lives, no matter how seemingly fortunate and to be envied, who could not find a whole chapter of miseries to mourn over, if he or she chose to turn over the leaves of life's book to that particular page.

In every life there is always something which might be bettered.

One person likes his environment, but hates his occupation; another likes his work, but dislikes his environment; one wants the city; another wants the country; and so on ad infinitum.

You feel you are particularly unfortunate in not having a harmonious home; in not having more companionship with people who are congenial; and in having a great many material worries.

Life a Serious Thing

You carry always a face of sorrow, and a look of sadness; and you tell me life grows more and more a very serious thing to you.

You are meantime forgetting that you are blest with health; that you are in possession of all your faculties; that you are not crippled or bedridden; and that you are pursuing an occupation which you like.

You breathe good fresh air in your home; you are not shut up in a tenement house; you are not confined in a factory all day; and you are not starved for good food.

Why, my dear girl, with such a list of things which could make life hard indeed for one left out of what fate gives you, it seems to me your days should be one poesn of thanks to God, and one prayer for voice and words to praise Him for His manifold blessings.

In the same post with your letter came one from a girl who is totally deaf, and who has lost both lower limbs; and she writes me that she has had a very pleasant time, enjoying the outdoor life and the kind attentions of good friends; and that she has been studying and growing.

Does not that make you ashamed of yourself?

It ought to.

Try for Harmony

An inharmonious home is indeed a great trouble; but the only thing for one to do who suffers from such a cause is to BE ONE NOTE OF HARMONY IN THE DISCORDS.

Speak the silent word of love to each member of the family; say, "Peace, Be Still" to the troubled domestic ocean, and by every thought, word and act set the example of harmony.

Miracles have been wrought by one loving, patient soul in a home of many wrangling minds.

Refuse to quarrel; refuse to be sullen; refuse to be sarcastic; and by the example of love and kindness, and good cheer, shame the other members of the household into better behavior.

Then, if they continue to be disagreeable, speak the word of, FREEDOM to your own soul; and pictures to yourself a life apart from the family.

It will come to you if you live in a way deserving of this freedom.

It will come either by a change in the people who make the discord or in your change to other surroundings.

It can never come while you are pitying yourself.

Self-pity is weakness and a waste of mental force.

It is a great weakness of character to continually crave pity and sympathy; and to want people to be sorry for you.

Just as well might every pupil who is given a lesson ask all the teachers and all the other scholars to be "sorry," and bestow sympathy.

Thank God for Trouble

We are placed in this world where our actions and thoughts in other lives direct our path; and we are here to build character and learn the power which lies in our minds to change present conditions and shape a better future.

We can never do this by constantly mourning over our situation. For such feelings waste our energies and prevent constructive processes of thought.

Begin right now, today, my dear girl, to thank God for whatever has come to you; thank Him for trouble and sorrow; and ask Him to show you the way to transmute these things into a strong, helpful, character; and to give you the power to work up and out of all conditions which are distasteful to you. This is your work; and you alone can do it.

Then look about you for things to rejoice over; and think and talk of these; and allow no one to be sorry for you.

Stand before your mirror and laugh every day for five minutes; and when you feel the corners of your mouth turning down bring them UP—and laugh again.

And before very long you will discover that you are no longer to be pitied, but to be congratulated.

For you will have made a new heaven and a new earth for yourself.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription, othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove those homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Riker-Jaynes drug stores and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Affection and Tact

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

WE are often told that Love is the biggest thing in the world. Doubtless it is, but Tact comes in a good second. I am sure more people know how to manifest love than to exercise tact. If one does not believe this, let him listen for a little while to the remarks that are made constantly in society, by one's friends, and in the family.

Only last week I heard a woman say to another, whose voice is her fortune, and who, upon all occasions, is asked to sing:

"There is a comfort for those of us who possess no parlor tricks. It is that one can always be sure when she is invited anywhere that she is wanted for herself, not for anything she can furnish in the way of entertainment."

The singer smiled and said nothing. It would be rather interesting to know just what she thought.

A voluble woman was talking with a clever man whose home is in a suburban town. He spoke of being fond of the village in which he dwelt.

"But do you know," said the voluble woman, "that I always fancied there was very good society there, but a man told me the other day that he did not believe there were more than two college men in the entire place. Is it true that there is so little culture in that beautiful spot?"

This man, too, smiled. He could afford to, for he had made his mark in the world as a writer of things that would live.

"My dear madame," he said, "that statement was probably true, although I have never looked into the matter—perhaps because I, myself, am not a college man."

Of course, the woman was mortified. "How could I suspect," she said afterward, "that a man as clever as that had never been to college?"

How, indeed—except by using her brains and imagination? Had she done this she would have remembered that one's culture is not dependent upon a university education, and that while to go to college is a wise proceeding for most men, many leaders in the world have not had this opportunity. Moreover, she might have exercised her imagination to the extent of considering that perhaps this man, himself, might not in his youth have had the money to take him farther than a high school course. But the merciless person cannot fancy himself in the other person's place.

Sometimes his inability to do this leads him to make remarks that appeal to one's sense of humor. A tactless and unmusical man asked an acquaintance to play the violin at his wife's ecru and he proposed giving the following week.

"But I am out of practise," the musician reminded his would-be host, "and I might not acquit myself well."

"Oh, never mind about that," the man reassured him. "We don't expect that people will listen to the music, but we do want something lively to fill in the gaps in the conversation, so that there will be no dreadful silences."

Strange to say, the musician did not feel as much honored as he had when the matter was first broached to him.

"Doctor," said a woman over the telephone to her family physician one stormy day, "this is the kind of weather in which no creature except a dog ought to go out. So I am keeping my husband, who is not well, at home, and I am asking you to come and see him."

Let us hope that the physician had a sense of humor that made him smile at the intimation conveyed in this speech.

Tact consists as much in saying the pleasant thing as in avoiding the unpleasant one. One of the most tactful of men found himself one evening in an embarrassing position. He was calling at a home in which the only son, just returned from his first year at college, was considered a prodigy by his parents and sisters. The lad was urged by his admiring family to recite Kipling's "Ballad of the East and West," which he proceeded to do with a grotesque effort at the dramatic and with gestures that reminded one of a windmill in a high gale.

The tactful visitor avoided the agonized glances of his wife, who had accompanied him upon this duty-call, and who knew that some comment would be expected when the painful performance was completed. At last the final line was "smashed" and the collegian looked to the man for comment, as did also the proud father, mother and sisters.

"It must be a pleasure to you," said the tactful man to the lad, "to have such a good memory and by it to give so much happiness to your dear people when you come home."

The situation was saved, for the guest had been able in that moment to put himself in the place of his hosts. Which is but another proof that, to be tactful, one must have imagination—and a strong one.

TUDOR TEA

TAKES LESS TO MAKE MORE

To make a perfect bisque with Campbell's Tomato Soup, just follow the easy directions on the label.

Use only a small pinch of baking-soda. Use fresh sweet milk, with only a little cream in it, if any. After you mix the soup and the milk let them come to boiling-point; but do not let them boil.

Preparing this delightful bisque or "cream-of-tomato" as it is often called is very simple. And you could not serve a more tempting and satisfying dinner-course.

SAMPLES

A YOUNG man who had spent his life in a country village went to London to seek his fortune. On the day of his arrival he walked into a restaurant and ordered dinner.

The waiter brought the meal in all those little side-dishes sacred to restaurant-keeping, and arranged them in tempting array around the young man's plate. The latter sat hour he sat and looked at the untouched dinner, until, overcome by hunger, he called the waiter, who had been watching him wonderingly, and said:

"Look here, mister, if you don't hurry and bring my dinner I'll eat up your samples!"

FINANCE BOARD ACCUSES SEVEN OF COUNCILLORS

Seven members of the Boston City Council are accused by the Finance Commission of a deliberate violation of the city charter in voting to urge Mayor Fitzgerald to give the city laborers an increase in wages.

The commission in a report made public this afternoon calls the vote of the seven councillors "humorous, pure and simple," and says the order which calls for an increase to $2.50 per day for the city laborers was introduced for "political purposes."

Under a strict interpretation of the law, according to the commission, the seven councillors—Smith, Wetson, Attridge, McDonald, Buckley, Coulthurst and Collins—are liable to a fine and imprisonment. The commission claims that that section of the city charter which forbids the City Council's interfering with the executive department has been violated.

In the report the Commission says:

The direct tendency of such orders is to facilitate the return to the discreditable practices of the past, under which members of former City Councils actively participated in the executive and administrative business of the city, in securing the appointment of employes, or increases in their compensation, or procuring contracts for persons in whom they were interested. The Commission deplores any attempt to return to these discredited practices.

The Commission also scores Councillor "Jerry" Watson for introducing, under order calling on the Park and Recreation Department to spend an appropriation for a Ward 19 playground.

This order is declared a violation of the city charter, and the council is urged to throw it on "the shelf."

The Commission says it believes the purpose of the order to be to force the Park and Recreation Department to select a particular site for the playground.

MRS. TILTON LEFT CHARITY $6,000

The will of Mrs. Annie M. Tilton of Cambridge was filed today in the Probate Court at East Cambridge. She leaves $6,000 to various institutions, as follows: Women's Home Missionary Society of the Shepard Church, $1,000; Foreign Missionary Society of same church, $500; Women's Auxiliary of N. E. Church, $500; Women's Aid Association at Cambridge Hospital, $1,000; Riverside Alliance of the Shepard Church, $1,500; Women's Seaman's Friend Society, $500; Old People's Home, $500; Avon House for Children, $500.

ROADS WILL ISSUE STUDENTS' TICKETS

Counsel for every railroad company in Massachusetts have notified the legislative Committee on Railroads that beginning May 16 their roads will issue to students to be used for any pupil under twenty-one in any school, public or private. The tickets will be sold at not more than half the regular fare.

In accordance with the proposition the committee on Railroads has postponed action until May 16 on the various bills before it relative to rates charged for transportation of students.

MILLIS GETS BIG NAVY SHOE ORDER

Joseph M. Herman, a Millis shoe manufacturer, secured the biggest shoe contract ever let by the Navy Department when he was awarded the contract for supplying 100,000 pairs of shoes to Uncle Sam's sailors at a cost of approximately $500,000.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

As a reaction against the high price of gasoline, automobile manufacturers are beginning to employ cheaper fuels for testing purposes. This practice is a possible saving of upwards of 3,000,000 gallons of gasoline within the next twelve months. The employment of a cheaper fuel for motor testing will involve a direct saving of at least $1,750,000 and will be one of the many phases of the gasoline situation considered at a meeting in New York by the special investigating committee of the Society of Automobile Engineers. Quite a number of the more prominent manufacturers, including the Detroit and Cleveland, are already using or are investing city gas in their test rooms.

Jack Hiscock, who is widely known in the automobile advertising field, is spending a few days in Boston.

Manager Fred Braddield of the Velie Company says that in no time in the history of the Velie it has been necessary there been such a great number of sales made at the shop counter. This is quite a common thing nowadays for the Velie Company to receive a carload of automobiles every day.

Eight of the largest motor trucks in the world, fitted with huge omnibus bodies, have been built by the White Company of Cleveland, O., for the Fifth Avenue Auto Transit Company. They will be placed in service in the Sunday City tomorrow. The bodies, which strongly resemble railway cars, were built by one of the largest street car builders in the country.

The busses are of the pay-as-you-enter type and have seats for thirty-four passengers. The trucks are driven by thirty-eight sixty-horsepower motors, giving them an aluminum of power equal to the steepest grades in Pittsburgh. Passengers will be carried between the down-town business district and the Highland Park residential sections.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

There was a better tone to stock markets at the opening. This was in a measure due to more confidence in London that the general peace of Europe will be preserved. New York opened with prices higher, but there was an undercurrent of nervousness. Thompson-Towle & Co. stated this morning: "Yesterday's setback was not due to a speculative attack on prices. A wave of liquidation swept through the flats."

The Boston market was fairly steady at the start, but was irregular all through the first hour. Granby and Wolverine were among the weak copiers, declining a point. Butte and Superior and North Butte made gains. Boston & Maine sagged two points and then recovered half of the loss. New Haven declined fractionally.

A New York dispatch reports the engagement of $50,000 in gold for South America.

Early New York Prices Higher.

While early prices were higher in New York, the rise was not in ratio to the advance in London. Sentiment was more certain and trading unsettled. Canadian Pacific was the most conspicuous stock at the start, opening 2¾ higher, but quickly receding to 235¾. There was pressure upon Southern Pacific because of the court decision, which will deprive it of land valued at $40,000,000. The first sale was at 96½, against 97¼ yesterday, but the issue soon recovered part of the loss.

Union Pacific was in brisk demand and within a few minutes had advanced a point. Within half an hour Canadian Pacific had receded to 234. The improvement in the general tone of the London market was due to the belief that diplomats would be able to localize the Balkan conflict. This was the uplifting influence in New York.

Among the advances in the latter market were Amalgamated ½, American Can 1, St. Paul ¼, Illinois Central ¼, New York Central ⅜, Pennsylvania ¼, Reading ⅝ and Steel common ⅝.

Northern Pacific lost ¼, and Union Pacific reacted.

The Curb was irregular.

American railroad shares in London exhibited strength on gains which showed an average of over a point. Canadians reacted after a sharp spurt. Berlin trading caused counter currents in the London market.

Rumors About Rumely Co.

There are a number of rumors in circulation about the M. Rumely Company. During the last three months its common shares have dropped about 80 points from the high of 1912 and preferred more than 50. This has caused rumors of changes in the management. One of the newest is that President Rumely will resign. Another is that cases of raising working capital are being discussed. A third is that the company is finding it hard to meet maturing notes. Regarding the company's financial condition, it is said by a banking house connected with it:

"The Rumely company is meeting all its note obligations as they come due and will continue to do so. There is one point in the year when the company is at the peak of its obligations when the demand upon it for financing its product is at the highest. This occurs usually in August. It will need about $5,000,000 in financing the peak of the load. It will receive the money."

I. C. C. Against Higher Rates?

It is said at Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission is unlikely to respond favorably to any request by Eastern railroads for the granting of increases in freight rates because of pay raises awarded locomotive engineers and firemen by arbitrators.

Some fifty-two Eastern railroads, under the leadership of Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, are preparing to ask for an increase.

All of the trunk lines between New York and Chicago are planning to put in new rate schedules with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which will provide for a horizontal increase in tariffs of at least 5 per cent.

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper quotation market opened easy with spot and futures each 3s. 0d. lower.

It is reported from Europe the decrease in the demand for the copper trade is owing to fear of a general European war because of the friction between the Austria and Italy boundaries. Dealers in London are dubious over the industrial outlook when there is a general international trade being tied up during an armed conflict.

As to the situation at Michigan mines, it is said by one of the most accurate and best informed writers on the copper situation:

"It looked yesterday as though the threatened strike among Michigan copper miners would develop tomorrow. The camp has become, unionized, but the company managements will not recognize the situation in this light. If grievances exist the companies will treat with the union individually, but not through their agents. They point out that the Michigan peninsula has been free from nations for the past 50 hundred years and will not submit to outside dictation at the late hour it will close over the top of 1913."

Financial News in Brief.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Road reports its total operating revenue increased $2,066 for March, and that the operating income decreased $774,000. From July 1 to the end of March the total operating revenue increased $3,583,727 and operating decrease $977,996.

The United States Steel Corporation is maintaining all its price quotations on finished products, but it is reported that some of the small independents have been making cuts.

The St. Louis & San Francisco road is in the market for 4,000 cars and freight cars and thirty locomotives.

The Great Northern Railroad reports earnings for the first quarter of this year were nearly twice as large as for the corresponding quarter of 1912. The surplus over dividend requirements amounted to $7,360,000.

The Grand Trunk has ordered 25 Mikado locomotives from the Baldwin works, 2,000 box cars from the Canadian Car & Foundry Company, 2,000 box cars from the Eastern Car Company, 3,000 box cars from the Western Steel Car Company, 1,000 drop bottom cars from the Western Steel Car & Foundry Company.

A number of Boston stocks made new low records for the year yesterday, they being Algomah, American Telephone, Boston & Albany, Boston & Corbin, Butte & Superior, Copper Range, Maine Central, Mexican and United Fruit.

The New York Sub-Treasury gained $758,000 from banks yesterday and since Friday has gained $1,615,000.

Save $100 in Buying a Good Piano

Don't support elaborate warerooms.
Don't pay commissions to doorbell canvassers.
Don't pay commissions to music teachers.
Don't pay commissions to salesmen.
Don't pay the middleman a tremendous profit.
Don't pay from $100 to $300 for a name which costs the mfg. perhaps a Million Dollars to advertise.

OUR SELLING COSTS

We have no Warerooms, no Salesmen chasing to your home. We pay no Commissions. We have no Agents, and don't want any. Personally I prefer a small profit on each piano and our legitimate profit, at the same time save you from $100 to $300 on every sale.

STOCK ON HAND

We have more Pianos in Name and Styles to select from on our floors than any firm in N. E. has in their entire buildings.

REAL PIANO BARGAINS

Every Week we make a clean-up of every Slightly Used Piano on our floor. At prices offered below. No Piano carried over if we make but $2.00.

Mr. Wilson Might Learn Something from the King of Montenegro

The People of the United States Might Incidentally Be Ashamed of the Attitude That Their Government Is Displaying Just Now in the Eyes of the World

It Is a Little Dangerous to Have a College Professor Experimenting With Affairs Bigger Than a Sophomore Class.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

The King of Montenegro was told by all the monarchs and Powers of Europe that he must not take Scutari.

He is King of a very small country—you could tuck it away in Massachusetts and still have more than as much again for a real estate speculation.

Half of his able-bodied men have been killed fighting already. What has happened to Montenegro in this war is about equivalent to the killing of seven millions of Americans of the fighting age.

The loss of half his fighting men, and the fact that compared to the rest of Europe he is like a fly compared to an elephant, doesn't frighten the King of Montenegro, BECAUSE HE KNOWS THAT HE IS RIGHT.

He had a right to take Scutari. He had a right to go on with the fight, which he and his men had victoriously and courageously begun.

And when Europe told him to stop he invited Europe to mind its own business and went ahead with his.

HE TOOK SCUTARI.

And that, Mr. Woodrow Wilson, is what happens when a nation has at the head of it a man who is thinking about the rights of that nation and not theorizing about something else.

In this country, WE DON'T INTEND TO HAVE CHINESE OR JAPANESE INHABITANTS, AND CALIFORNIA SAYS SO IN A LAND BILL.

Other States have done what California does.

The government of the United States itself discriminates against the Japanese and Chinese very wisely.

If the Japanese and Chinese came here in numbers greater than public opinion would permit, we should have a problem that would result in wholesale murder, and in conditions very much more unpleasant for the Japanese and the Chinese than the present polite diplomatic state of affairs.

Mr. Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, unfortunately has been accustomed to dealing with four important bodies of human beings, namely—a freshmen class, a senior class, a sophomore and a junior class.

And now that he has been promoted to a position in which he deals with more important bodies, he acts as though he had to solve some trouble among the sophomores, some cane rush, or some little hazing incident.

And he lectures the colleges, forgetting that the United States is not a college; that the public opinion of the citizens of this country is not the whim or the playful mood of a class of college boys.

Mr. Wilson is asking Uncle Sam to apologize to little Mr. Jap and thus keep out of trouble.

Mr. Wilson has given the Japanese, conceited and aggressive enough already, an idea that the United States fears their haughty displeasure.

He has meddled with the rights of California. He has interfered in a matter in which his voice will carry no weight, in which he can do great harm, but absolutely no good.

He has made the nation ridiculous, and he might cause temporary serious trouble, by making it necessary for the United States to settle once and for all the Japanese idea that Japan can do in this country things which the people of the country are not willing that she should do.

It is unfortunate to take a man who has made no success except as a moderately good college professor, a man who knows nothing of international affairs, a man whose self-approval is gigantic and overwhelming, and put him in a position where lack of ability to keep one's mouth shut, and lack of common sense to appreciate the rank of others, can work so much harm.

It is comical to see the King of Montenegro obtaining his rights and defying Europe, and to see this country, the greatest and most powerful in the world, rebuked by a college professor President because it ventures in attending to its own business to offend a small handful of jingos and braggarts in Japan.

Senators: Save the Babies—Vote for the Ellis Milk Bill

The Ellis milk bill is before the Senate today. Last week, in the House, Representative Lydon of Boston uttered this appeal in its behalf:

> I feel that I have an intense interest in the passage of this bill. One year ago last week, one of my beloved children was snatched away from us because we had been supplied that morning with unclean milk. We could not tell where that milk came from; we had no means of knowing whether it was good or bad; we had simply taken it on faith. I appeal to every father in the House to consider this question of properly safeguarding our milk supply. I appeal to you and ask you to vote for the Ellis bill in order that our State Board of Health shall have legal power and an adequate force of inspectors to protect the lives and health of your children.

About ten thousand babies died in this State of cholera infantum during the last three years.

Impure food is an aggressive cause of such deaths.

Milk is the great food for babies.

If the Ellis milk bill will protect a little baby, will you vote against it, Senators?

Uncle Sam and the King of Montenegro

Montenegro, thirty miles square, defies the whole of Europe—BEING RIGHT. Uncle Sam, with a territory somewhat more than thirty miles square, is also right, but Mr. Wilson thinks that he ought to humbly apologize to Mr. Jap.

History Supplanting Fiction

THE very important statement is made by superintendents of great public libraries that books of fiction are losing in popularity as compared with works of a more solid and instructive nature. Books on science and history are said to be particularly in demand.

If this be true it shows a growing use of the imagination.

The habitual novel reader may stick at that. He thinks that HE uses his imagination when he reads his favorite stories. But ask him to construct a clear mental picture of anything outside the conventional scenes of the novelists and he will flutter like a bird that has never learned the use of its wings.

Average Novel Reader Has Slight Knowledge of History

You will usually find that he is incapable of understanding the real working of any of the great mechanisms that have transformed the life of the modern world. He sees the outside, but he has not imagination enough to bring the inside before his mental vision. He gets his idea of a great aeroplane from a sketchy story by Rudyard Kipling.

Instead of dealing with the great characters and scenes of history for himself, and reconstructing them in his mind, he reads fanciful "historical novels" in which facts are distorted, famous men and women caricatured, and false scenes presented. He fancies that he is USING his imagination when he is only riding on the wings of some other man's imagination.

He might know very wise about the world of men and women amid which he lives if he would study THEM, but he studies only the more or less foolish representations of them made by novelists. Let every intelligent person imitate what the conscientious novelist himself does by exercising his imagination directly upon the scenes of daily life, as presented by his own observations and by the newspapers, and he will also discover that his favorite authors have missed, or disregarded, or falsified, many of the most important and interesting things.

An illustration of the real use of the imagination may be witnessed any afternoon in front of a newspaper bulletin board, where a telegraphic picture of the struggles on the baseball grounds is presented. The imaginative boy in such a situation is almost as well placed as if he were sitting on the bleachers. He SEES the twirled ball shoot over the diamond; he SEES the wild grab of the catcher; he HEARS the swat of the bat, and SEES the runner speeding from bag to bag, and he cannot restrain his clarion voice when a run is scored by his favorite player in the glowing field of his imagination.

Later he READS the history of what he has already SEEN, and renews his joy in memory. If he were simply reading the story of an imaginary game it would be somebody else's picture that he would have before his mind, and he would feel the essential falseness of the representation.

The scenes of this world are enormously interesting, if only we will fill them out with the imagination and use for the purpose our own and not some other person's imagination. This applies to the history of past times. It is no advantage to us to see General Washington in a novel, but it is an immense advantage to see him with our own mind's eyes. The reason why history is not a more favorite study is solely because most persons have not learned to use the imagination independently. To a properly trained mind the accounts of Nero by the Roman historians is a thousand times more interesting and vivid than Sienkewicz's fanciful picture of him in "Quo Vadis," because the thoughtful reader of the histories uses his own imagination untrammelled, and fills in the outlines in the way that seems to him the most probable and pleasing. The plainest facts are full of the deepest romance if only we educate the mind to get out of them what they contain.

The country boy who when the Spring thaws have started miniature rivers flowing from every snowbank follows those streams through the fields, wondering at their roaring cataracts, noting their sudden bends, observing where they issue into plains and spread themselves into lakes, and animating their shores with imaginary cities, finds a higher pleasure and a better exercise for his imagination than in reading "Robinson Crusoe." He makes a whole world of his father's farm, with its mountains, its prairies, its great capitals, and its warring nations. The day is too short for him.

Lives of Historic Heroes Far More Interesting Than Fiction

The life of Galileo, or Napoleon, or Peter the Great, or Isaac Newton is more interesting than any story that was ever written. The accounts of the spectroscope, the telescope, wireless telegraphy, aviation, far exceed, in genuine interest, the tales of the "Arabian Nights." It is a sickly mind that demands novels for its daily food.

I do not mean to say that the products of the imagination of really great writers should not be read. They, too, have a vast importance; but the trouble is that many persons make imaginative literature almost their only mental recreation, and that is as bad as bad can be.

What Would Happen if the Orbital Motion of the Earth Was Retarded—Interference Might Precipitate It Into the Sun or Into a Different Orbit.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"WHAT would happen if, by some unforeseen obstacle, the orbital motion of the earth were retarded? Would the decrease of the earth's centrifugal force cause it to be drawn into the sun, or would the orbit be automatically adjusted, so that equilibrium would be restored?"

The writer of that may seem to some readers to be borrowing trouble about nothing, but in reality he has asked a very practical question. The kind of knowledge he seeks is of the same nature as that sought by the steamship passenger who insists on knowing what provision has been made for an encounter with icebergs.

The earth rushes eastward round the sun at a velocity of about 18½ miles per second. But, while interstellar space, like the Atlantic Ocean, offers plenty of open room for speeding suns and planets, yet it also contains many potential obstacles, such as great nebulae, both luminous and dark, some of which are billions of miles across; and wandering comets, and shoals of meteors, and huge invisible bodies which are only known to exist by the effects that they produce upon visible stars that have fallen under the influence of their attraction; to say nothing of the millions of other suns which, like ours, are rushing in all directions, like ships at sea, each seeking its own port.

Suns, Like Star Arcturus, Move with Appalling Rapidity.

Some of these, like the immense star Arcturus, which exceeds our sun thousands of times in magnitude, are moving with appalling speed, as if they were giant battleships ramming their way through the universe.

So it is evident that accidents of many kinds may happen even to the best ordered solar systems, and an inquiry like that made above is worthy of an answer.

If the "unforeseen obstacle" should absolutely destroy the earth's orbital motion round the sun, the consequence would be that the earth would fall straight into the sun and be consumed almost in a flash. But there would be time for its inhabitants to make dignified preparations for their end, since the earth would take about sixty-four and a half days to fall to the sun after its orbital motion was arrested. If the orbital motion of the moon were similarly destroyed it would fall to the earth in about four days and twenty hours.

If the obstacle acted for a short time only and destroyed but a part of the earth's orbital motion, then the earth would drop nearer the sun and begin to travel round it in a smaller orbit. In that case the earth would adjust itself automatically to the new state of affairs. But probably it would not be very agreeable for us to be carried, say, twice as near the sun as we are now, for then the quantity of solar heat falling upon the earth would be quadrupled.

If the obstacle acted as a continuous resistance to the earth's orbital motion, then the earth would gradually approach the sun on a spiral path, until, at last, it would plunge into the solar furnace. The same result would be produced, but much more slowly, if the resistance were encountered by the earth periodically at some point in its orbit. The orbit would then become a little smaller after each encounter, until, at last, it might become so small that it would pass within the body of the sun, which is 860,000 miles in diameter.

Possible for Some Passing Mass to Increase Earth's Speed.

Something of this kind seems actually to have occurred to Encke's comet, whose orbit has been observed to become slightly smaller at several returns, as if, at some place, it encountred a swarm of meteors lying in its track.

It would also be possible for some vast mass, like an extinguished sun, passing near the solar system, to so act upon the earth as to increase instead of decrease its orbital velocity, and in that case the earth would adjust itself to the new conditions by moving away from the sun, and traveling in a larger and more remote orbit, perhaps away out in the cold of distant space. If it were carried as far away as Jupiter is from the sun, the heat that it received would be only about one-twenty-fifth as much as it now gets.

But the earth might be dragged off, like a kidnaped child, by a huge passing body, and then it would never see its family again. All the other planets would suffer similarly, the solar system would be broken up and scattered abroad, and the sun itself, owing to the tremendous tidal forces set in action by the near approach of the disturbing body, would probably be burst asunder, and the entire system reduced to the chaotic state of a whirling, spiral nebula.

This is not purely a fanciful picture, for there are many reasons for believing that just such catastrophes have happened to other suns and solar systems, and have been visible to us in the form of new, temporary stars, some of which, like the great new star of 1901, have actually been seen to turn into nebulae.

But the universe is only the more interesting for these things. The joy of the Creator is in making, unmaking and remaking, and, perhaps, in a higher state of existence we shall take the same pleasure in these vast changes that we now find in watching the progression from seed to flower and from flower back to seed, while Spring, Summer and Autumn flit over our gardens.
